VOTERS' APPROVAL SEEN BY ETHERIDGE

If Citizens of Fulton Ratify Proposal, Merger Plan Will Go Into Effect on January 1, 1930.

Probability that Atlantans will vote within 45 days on whether local schools shall be consolidated with and under direction, administration and operation of the Fulton county system loomed Monday night when members of the Fulton county board predicted that an early meeting of that body would be held to ask the city to call a referendum on the issue.

Governor L. G. Hardman Monday affixed his signature to a paper calling for consolidation in the event the voters of the city wish the merger to take place, and Arthur Wrigley, a member of the board, acting in the absence from the city of W. E. Tallaferrro, president, said a meeting would be held within the next week or so.

Under provisions of the bill, city authorities would call the election not less than 30 days and not more than 40 days after the county board requests that the election be held. A majority of the votes cast in the election shall determine whether the merger shall become effective. A favorable vote will force the merger, an unfavorable one will leave the schools as they are now, under direction and control of a board of 13, one from each of the 12 wards, and the 13th member the chairman of the school committee of city council.

Passed by the house of representatives a week ago, the school merger bill was brought up in the senate Monday, passed, and signed by Governor Hardman. The bill provides for such a merger in counties with a population of 200,000 or more. If the people ratify the proposal, the merger will go into effect January 1.

Etheridge Sees Approval.
In a statement issued Monday afternoon, Paul S. Etheridge, chairman of the Fulton county commission, expressed approval of the proposed school merger, and said he has worked for years to get through such a bill. "I believe the bill will be ratified by the people," said Mr. Etheridge. "It will be a solution of the school problem in this metropolitan district, and will greatly decrease the expense of school operation, as well as eliminating bickering and wrangling in the Atlanta school board."

Mr. Etheridge expressed the opinion that the merger would make for harmony in school affairs and eliminate a lot of politics in the schools. The county school board is appointed by the grand jury, and the merger would take the city schools out of politics, he said, adding "It would tremendously advance the cause of education."

Mr. Wrigley declined to comment on the proposed merger, other than to state that the county board will meet within a short time to put the machinery into effect.

Special Session Planned.
The next regular meeting of the monthly board is set for September 3, but the board will meet at a special session before that time to set the referendum vote, Mr. Wrigley said. The bill signed Monday by the governor provides that in counties of 200,000 or more population all public schools of the county and of any city in the county shall be under the consolidated management and jurisdiction of the county board of education, and that the city shall pass the duties, rights, powers, titles and jurisdiction existing by law, local, general or special, vested in the local school authorities of the city shall pass to and be vested in the county board of education.

Further, the bill provides, all provisions in force in the city by virtue of the charter or other laws for imposing taxes or appropriating revenues to the public schools shall remain in force, but the funds shall be turned over to the county board or its authorized representatives for expenditure.

One System Proposed.
The bill states that so far as may be practical, the county and city shall be managed as one consolidated system, due regard being had in the expenditure of funds to the sources from which they were derived.

The referendum is to be held on a day not less than 30 nor more than 40 days after the call is issued. George Powell, president of the Atlanta school board, Monday afternoon

Finance Body Refuses To Follow Instructions To Trim Sheet, Cutting Out $2,000,000.

The anticipated battle over the general budget bill for the next biennium advanced rapidly to its second phase Monday night with refusal of the house appropriations committee to follow instructions calling for a cut of approximately $2,000,000 from the total of the measure as reported for floor consideration.

Declining to consider the bill in the form presented, the house this morning adopted by 90 to 46 a motion of Representative Martin, Troup, to return the measure to the committee with a request that it be revised so as to bring the total within the comptroller-general's estimate of revenue for the next two years. During preliminary discussion it was brought out by Representative Alexander, chairman of the committee on appropriations, that the expected income for 1930 totaled only about $11,350,000, even in the event the senate should pass all of the house tax measures now before it, whereas the appropriations recommended in the budget bill for 1930 aggregated $13,418,524.22 for 1931 were increased to $13,696,662.42.

Upon reconsidering the bill, however, the committee took the position that it should not act on the assumption that the house would be unable to raise additional funds in the remaining days of the session. Representative McWhorter, Oglethorpe, addressing the committee, struck the key-

WEATHER DELAYS TOUR OF ZEPPELIN

Russian Reports Tell of Low Pressure Area Over Route to Tokyo—Motors O. K.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, August 12.—(AP)—Although the dirigible Graf Zeppelin today was ordered "cleared for sailing" early Wednesday morning, weather reports from Russia tonight made it almost certain that it would be Thursday morning before it starts on the longest flight ever attempted by a dirigible.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the ship, will await another weather report tomorrow before making public announcement of his plans for the long flight to Tokyo, the second stage of the voyage around the world.

Reports sent him tonight by Russian meteorologists indicated that there was a widespread low pressure area over northern Russia which probably would make it impossible for him to enter over soviet territory on Königsberg as he had hoped. He was considering proceeding by a southern route which would follow the course of the Danube to the Black sea.

Over steppes and mountains, many of which have never been mapped, Dr. Eckener's flight estimated by Zeppelin officials at between 6,250 and 7,500 miles. It was thought the Zeppelin would need five days to cover the distance. The total trip, which is longer even than on her first difficult passage from Friedrichshafen to New York in 1928.

With her new motors tuned up and broken in, an engineer from the Maybach works said they were good for 1,000 hours of flying. Dr. Eckener therefore should have a very comfortable margin for continuous flying.

"Everything is in perfect order for the entire flight around the world so far as necessary permits, visas and other governmental requirements are concerned," Dr. Eckener said.

The soviet government has been most obliging in every respect. At the beginning of negotiations the soviet authorities suggested a certain route over the vast Russian territory to us. We immediately asked them whether this was a prescribed or an optional route.

The soviet replied that this was merely a suggested route based on their meteorological experience. They did not in the least wish to prescribe my course.

Dr. Eckener said it was "absolutely impossible to forecast" his route across Russia and Siberia. He would choose a northern or a southern route on the basis of last minute weather reports.

The last word on the start will be announced at the traditional tea preceding departure of the airship Tuesday afternoon.

SENATE APPROVES 2 DAILY SESSIONS

Upper House Prepares for Hard Work by Voting To Convene Every Afternoon.

Preparations for hard work during the two remaining weeks of the legislative session were made in the senate Monday when resolutions of the rules committee calling for regular sessions as well as morning sessions and for abolition of the usual 1 o'clock adjournment hour were approved. Making every effort to clear the calendar of important legislation and numerous minor measures before the last week of the 1929 meeting arrives, the rules body presented a lengthy calendar for the two Monday sessions and indicated that important business would be transacted every day this week.

Senate debate on the Boykin six-cent gasoline tax bill is scheduled for the first order of business Wednesday morning. On that day the largest attendance of the week is usually on hand, and conditions are favorable for debate on pressing measures.

During the double day Monday the upper house disposed of nearly a score of general bills and passed almost an equal number of local bills from the house of representatives. Outstanding features of the day were the defeat of a bill designed to abolish all state agricultural and mechanic art schools; defeat of a constitutional amendment to provide for the office of lieutenant governor, and passage of a bill to reorganize the city and county educational systems of Atlanta and Fulton county.

School Bill Beaten.

Defeat of the A. & M. school bill was obtained by a single vote, the roll call showing a count of 25 to 18. With only single vote needed for the necessary constitutional majority of 26, the president was called upon to call a ballot. His negative vote defeated the bill.

Senator Whaley gave notice that he would move to reconsider the senate's rejection of the bill. He said the district A. & M. schools will continue to operate as at present and will draw the appropriations allotted them from the 1930-31 budget. Just before the vote on the bill itself, an amendment of Senator Whaley was adopted, which would have submitted the issue to a popular referendum on the abolition of the schools, became final.

In a lengthy debate over the measure, opponents argued that the district schools are of great importance to the agricultural development of the state and should be maintained. Advocates of the bill claimed that maintenance of the schools on the level of county high schools was a discrimination for 12 counties against the 149 others in the state.

Whaley Defends Bill.

In a defending speech for his bill Senator Whaley declared that the money now appropriated to the district schools would serve to establish vocational training in almost every county in the state. He said the bill proposed taxing the entire state to maintain what he characterized as "12 county high schools." Senator Redwine, in supporting the measure, stated that the A. & M. schools were a duplication of work in local high schools.

Senator Lawson, of the fourteenth district, raised a question as to the constitutionality of giving state property of the schools into the hands of county authorities where they are situated, as called for in the bill. It was believed that the property and equipment of the schools should be sold and funds deposited in the state treasury.

Revision of the criminal procedure laws so as to authorize superior court judges to accept pleas of guilty from felony defendants and prescribe sentence without delay for court session, as called for in a measure of Senator Matthews, passed by a unanimous vote of the senate. Similar provisions had been a part of the general criminal procedure bill which was tabled by the upper house a week ago.

Railroad Charters.

A measure by Senator Lawson giving railroad corporations the right to renew charters for a period of 101 years was passed without opposition. The author explained that the bill will encourage purchase and operation of railroads which have fallen into the hands of receivers.

Installation of the state veterinarian as ex-officio chairman of the state board of veterinary examiners was provided in a bill by Senator

Vote on Revision of Young Agreement Is Postponed To Consider Other Problems.

The Hague, August 12.—(AP)—Adroitly skirting the crisis that has deadlocked its deliberations, The Hague conference to make the Young plan for reparations effective today took a new track and sailed along toward a solution of the Rhineland evacuation problem, just as if the tie-up over reparations didn't exist.

Philip Snowden, chancellor of the British exchequer, who is generally credited with having almost run The Hague conference since the rocks by challenging the Young plan experts for reducing Great Britain's reparations payments, himself helped save the situation by calling for the adjournment of the finance commission until Wednesday.

This move in the committee where the reparations crisis exists came as a surprise, but it enabled the political committee to inaugurate discussion of Rhineland evacuation. These deliberations developed the opinion that before any particular date could be considered it would be necessary for military experts to pass on a great number of technical questions connected with the transport of troops.

Conference To Be Held.

Foreign Minister Stresemann, Premier Briand, Foreign Minister Hyndman and Foreign Secretary Henderson will study these subjects tomorrow with their respective military advisers and will meet privately during the afternoon at the British foreign secretary's apartment to talk over the situation before referring it to the technical committee.

The political committee having put off the reparations crisis at least until Wednesday leaves tomorrow free for private conversations which it is understood already have begun between Premier Henri Jaspars, of Belgium on the part of France, Italy and other creditor nations, and Chancellor Snowden on the other in an effort to find some way to bring the conflicting views together.

Delegates Reserve Opinions.

Although there is considerably more cheerfulness in conference circles regarding the ultimate outcome, delegates still are very reserved as to the prospect of agreement. The rumor mongers had J. P. Morgan here today as a mediator between the two camps. When it was discovered that Morgan was somewhere else, it was

'Luke,' Famed Constitution Cat, Expires

The famous Constitution mascot, "Luke," is no more. The ancient brindle cat, who spent all of his seven years in The Constitution building, ate some insect poison Friday and died Monday morning in the hospital of Dr. J. C. Wright.

There's no doubt that "Luke" was the best known cat in the south and perhaps in the nation. Visitors to the office of Cecil Holleran on the sixth floor of The Constitution generally inquired about "Luke" and the state of his health.

When The Constitution building caught fire several years ago "Luke" was the object of a daring rescue. Firemen saw him climbing to a window ledge high up on the outside and at the risk of their lives clambered up and saved the cat.

When the story of "Luke's" rescue was printed in the paper he received letters from many parts of the country, some from as far north as Minnesota and as far south as Cuba. Many of the letters incited catnip for the cat.

Every person who works on The Constitution knew "Luke" and at one time or other stroked his coat of fur. He never left the sixth floor for several years.

When the cat ate the poison Dr. Wright was called and did all he could to save his life, but the poison was of such a nature as to leave little hope.

At one time or other "Luke" had been stroked by United States senators, motion picture stars, boxers, famous baseball and football players, noted singers and musicians and notables in many other lines of work.

Clemency Is Recommended for C. J. Norman and 14 Others; Freedom Is Refused Major Carter.

Palmer Blackburn, former Atlanta bond operator who now is serving a three-to-four year term for larceny after trust, was included among 15 convicts for whom the state prison commission Monday recommended paroles or pardon. A full pardon was asked for the former prominent young business man.

Blackburn was widely known here as an investment broker when his firm failed early in 1925 and he was subsequently indicted on 30 counts charging larceny after trust, forgery and fraud.

After being free under bond for some time he went before Judge Virgil B. Moore, of the Fulton county superior court, on June 26, 1928, and pleaded guilty to two larceny after trust charges and a forgery count. He then was sentenced by Judge Moore who followed his sentence with the expression of his belief that Blackburn would return from the state prison farm to take a useful place in society.

Another unusual feature of the sentencing was that a large number of Blackburn's alleged victims were in court to plead in his behalf. His attorney, William Schley Howard, contended that Blackburn's guilt was only technical and that any money he had used improperly he had taken in an effort to avert business collapse and more serious loss.

The prison board counts against Blackburn but it is not expected that these will be pressed.

Clemency List.

Clemency also was recommended in the following cases: Samuel Williams (B), Fulton, col. man, parole; Lula Jackson (B), Fulton, asst. to murder, parole; Thomas Parker (B), Bulloch, embezzlement, parole; B. C. Satter (B), DeKalb, criminal assault, parole; Ralph Findley (W), Fulton, vol. manslaughter, parole; Sam Reese (B), Jasper, murder, parole; C. J. Henderson, parole; Tom Hinkle, parole; DeWitt Wilson (W), DeKalb, larceny, parole; Campbell, larceny, parole; Palmer Blackburn (W), Fulton, larceny after trust, parole; Arthur Hanley (W), Miller, larceny, parole.

Clemency was denied in the following cases:

Otis Wilder (B), city court of Athens, larceny; Nelson Parks (B), Fulton, burglary; John Henry Hudson (B), Muscogee, burglary; William E. Hogz (W), Lowndes, larceny after trust; James Campbell (B), Floyd, murder; Abbie Brown (B), Coffee, vol. manslaughter; R. P. Brown (W), DeKalb, larceny; Byrd Woods (W), Gwinnett, simple larceny; Dave Sargent (W), Walker, burglary; Lester Sargent (W), Cobb, burglary; Frank Bates (B), Fulton, murder; Charles Clark (W), Fulton, burglary; Cecil Forbes (W), Fulton, larceny after trust; W. B. Stuber (W), Fulton, felony; George D. Newsome (W), Glascock, larceny; Ed Killibrew (B), Fulton, robbery; Geo. Wimshis (W), Fulton, larceny after trust; Perkins Williams (B), Chatham, burglary; Robert Booth (W), Ware, stealing chickens; Fig Ray (W), Bartow, burglary; V. W. NORMAN WAS COUNTY TREASURER.

Covington, Ga., August 12.—(Special).—C. J. Norman, who today was recommended for a pardon by the state prison commission, was sentenced from Newton county 18 months ago on embezzlement charges involving the misappropriation of $6,500 of Newton county funds which were in Norman's possession as county treasurer.

CARTER CONVICTED IN SHERIFF'S SLAYING.

Jenup, Ga., August 12.—(Special).—The case of Major Carter, who today was refused clemency by the state prison commission, was brought here on a charge of murder from Pierce county. Carter was convicted of the murder of Sheriff John Robertson, of Pierce county in 1925.

The sheriff, participating in a raid on a liquor still, was found shot to death. The present sheriff, Olin Robertson, is the slain man's son.

The four men were in the workings when the first three explosions occurred in an intersecting gangway. They attempted to come up at that time when the fourth explosion occurred, hurling them down a 40-foot shaft.

The 25 miners who were working in a gang in a tunnel running off to the west from the Primrose vein, escaped through an air shaft a quarter mile away and joined the crew to fight the fire. None was injured or burned.

Case Will Be Given to Jury Wednesday—Story of Killing as Told on Stand Under Fire.

Columbus, Ohio, August 12.—(AP)—The closing of direct testimony on behalf of Dr. James H. Snook, confessed slayer of Theora Hix, Ohio State university co-ed, and the launching of the state's rebuttal to prove the defendant falsified while on the witness stand, indicated that Dr. Snook's fate will be placed in the hands of the jury not later than Wednesday.

The defense rested this afternoon with a final attack on the autopsy by which Coroner Joseph Murphy decided that Miss Hix died from a knife wound which severed her jugular vein.

The state immediately began its rebuttal to show that Dr. Snook, contrary to his testimony last week, admitted he cut the girl's throat to the jugular vein. The defense's attempt to impeach Dr. Snook's witness stand account of the killing of his young mistress centered chiefly around the signed confession which the doctor has flatly disclaimed. As Prosecutor Chester read each statement from the stenographic notes of the confession, Dr. Snook's cross-examination by the prosecution was directed at the confession and declared that most of its statements were dictated by the prosecutor.

Ralph O. Brown, the stenographer who took the notes, went to the stand and testified that the confession was made by Dr. Snook and that the defendant did admit severing Miss Hix's jugular vein with his pocket knife.

With testimony thus in direct conflict it will be up to the 11 men and one woman who comprise the jury to decide whether Dr. Snook, or the state has the more accurate story of what happened at the New York Central rail yard on the night of June 13, when Miss Hix was killed.

The revolver which Dr. Snook said he believed the girl had concealed in her purse at the time of the killing was formally introduced as a defense exhibit this afternoon. It was minus the trigger spring and could be cocked only by depressing the muzzle.

Walter Highhouse, a small arms expert, took the stand as a defense witness, and told the jury that the trigger spring had been removed from the weapon within the last month by an unskilled person, intimating that some member of the state's staff had tampered with it.

The hammer of the gun was not working properly when Detective Gail McGrath found it in a dresser drawer at the apartment where Miss Hix occupied with two friends, but McGrath testified that the trigger spring must have been in the weapon at that time or it could not have been cocked without a knowledge of depressing the muzzle.

FOUR ARE BURNED AND 25 ESCAPE IN MINE BLAST

Pottsville, Pa., August 12.—(AP)—Four men were burned, three seriously and 25 escaped through an air shaft in an intersecting gangway tonight when a series of four explosions occurred in the Primrose vein of the Sherman Coal Company here.

The explosions caused the first blast to ignite a gas pocket and swept through the vein.

The four men were in the workings when the first three explosions occurred in an intersecting gangway. They attempted to come up at that time when the fourth explosion occurred, hurling them down a 40-foot shaft.

The 25 miners who were working in a gang in a tunnel running off to the west from the Primrose vein, escaped through an air shaft a quarter mile away and joined the crew to fight the fire. None was injured or burned.

Sum Is Fixed by Chairman Howard After Conference With C. C. Mason and G. E. Maddox.

A Fulton county fee of $500 for candidates in the democratic primary for congress on September 11 was set Monday by William Schley Howard, chairman of the fifth district congressional executive committee, following a conference with Claude C. Mason, chairman of the Fulton county executive committee, and G. E. Maddox, chairman of the state executive committee.

Mr. Howard said that the cost of the primary had been estimated at $1,500, and that any sum over that amount paid in by candidates in Fulton county is to be returned to the candidates.

To qualify in Fulton county, the candidates must pay the $500 fee to Mr. Mason not later than 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in order to obtain a receipt.

Acts Under Resolution.
This action by Mr. Howard followed a refusal of the Fulton county committee chairman to hold a meeting and assess the fee. Mr. Howard acted under a resolution passed by the fifth district committee.

Fees fixed in other counties in the district follow: DeKalb, $250 for each candidate; Douglas, $25 for each candidate; Rockdale, $25 for each candidate; Campbell county's estimated cost of $200 for the primary will be pro rated among the candidates.

Mr. Mason said that inasmuch as the district committee has fixed the fee for Fulton county, he is "ready at any time to hold the election," in accordance with the wishes of the district committee.

Salaries of managers and clerks will have to be smaller than in other elections and the number of polling places will have to be reduced as the amount estimated for the cost of the primary is only $1,500, and election in Fulton county usually cost between $2,500 and $3,000, he said.

$500 Fee Fixed.
A fee of $500 for each candidate qualifying in the race is fixed as the entrance fee of each candidate into the race in Fulton county. Mr. Howard said in his statement, "It is the duty of the senior chamber, mate cost of holding said primary will be $1,500, and any sum over the amount paid in by candidates so qualified in Fulton county is to be returned to the candidates in said primary pro rata."

"It is ordered that the sum of $500 be paid to the chairman of the democratic executive committee of Fulton county, Claude C. Mason, at the court house, ordinary's office, by 3 o'clock Monday, Wednesday, August 14, Mr. Mason will issue to said candidates his receipt for the same."

Mr. Mason said that the matter of fixing the fees was entirely up to the district committee, as the office to be filled at the primary is that of congressman from the fifth Georgia district, to succeed the late Leslie J. Steele. "The district committee has no money for holding such primary," he said.

"It makes no difference to the county committee whether there is a polling place in every ward in Atlanta and every precinct in the county or not. The primary is a matter which is entirely up to the district committee. The county committee simply has no money for holding such primary," he said.

He expressed his willingness to hold the election if the district committee can find the money.

It was said that under the estimated cost of $1,500, one polling place can be provided in each ward of the city and in each county precinct.

To qualify for the election, candidates must notify J. S. Creel, of Union City, secretary of the district executive committee, by noon Thursday, and exhibit to the secretary their receipts for the county entrance fees.

The special election has been set by Governor Hardman for October 2.

FLORIDA OFFICIALS NAB EIGHT MEN WITH RUM CARGO
Perry, Fla., August 12.—(AP)—Taylor county authorities today were holding eight men, a boat, four motor trucks and a quantity of liquor, captured at Koon Bay, 18 miles from here, early yesterday.

Officers said the trucks carried extra license plates from several states and evidently were headed north at the time of the seizure.

The boat, cargo and equipment, officers said, were valued at approximately $100,000.

Names of the men taken prisoners were not made public.

HALLMAN NAMED COMMITTEE HEAD

Government Officials Disclaim Any Intention of Forcing Change Over Local Protests.

Latest developments in the proposed plans to reorganize the Georgia National Guard and to convert the 122d regiment into an artillery unit, as made public by The Constitution Sunday morning are as follows:

1. A committee of seven was appointed at a meeting called by Philip H. Alston, president of the chamber of commerce, which is to study the matter and report to the board of directors of the organization at an early date.

2. Dispatches from Washington state that high government officials have disclaimed any intention of forcing such a change through over local protests.

3. Mr. Alston received a letter from General Richmond P. Davis praising the proposed plan and urging that it be carried out in order to conform with the scheme of the war department to adequately balance our national defense.

4. Adjutant-General Homer C. Parker issued a statement in which he again declared that the conversion plan originated in Washington.

5. At a meeting of the guard officers at the auditorium Monday night, General Parker explained the situation to them following which they agreed to take the matter under advisement and expressed their thanks to him for clarifying the situation.

Appointment of a committee of seven men headed by Henderson Hallman to study the proposed plan to convert the 122d infantry into a coast defense regiment and to report their findings to the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce for the consideration of that body concluded the meeting of some 30 prominent Atlanta citizens at the Chamber of Commerce building Monday afternoon, which was called by Philip H. Alston, president of the chamber.

In addition to Mr. Hallman, the committee consists of Chauncey Middlebrooks, W. D. Hoffman, Ivan Alton, Mr. Alston, W. L. Moore and J. H. Woody. The group was instructed to communicate with Senators George and Harris requesting them to use their influence to have the matter held in abeyance until a thorough study of the situation can be made.

ADVERTISING MAY WELD NATIONS, SPEAKER SAYS

Importance of Field Stressed
at International Association Convention.

Berlin, August 12.—(AP)—Although hundreds of delegates to the International Advertising Association convention were tempted away from the afternoon session by the gorgeous summer weather full complement of 5,000 donned evening dress tonight for the "international evening" banquet at the Zoological Garden.

United States Ambassador Jacob Gould Schurman, one of the guests of honor, stressed in his speech the part which men trained in advertising might take in the field of international relations.

"I think that this field offers scope for advertisers of the highest skill, the largest knowledge and the ripest experience," he said. "Here the problem is nothing less than the interpretation of the nations of the world to one another."

"Here then is the question I lay before this convention. Is there any way in which a nation in its real essence of character and soul can be interpreted to other nations? If you can put that across it will be a supreme achievement for advertising and a unique and lasting theme for renewal."

"If wars are to cease the nations must learn to know and judge one another by what is best in each."

At the late afternoon session Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, described the advantages of "censored advertising" which he said was primarily for the protection of the reader.

"Ball-toss and bunk were closely related to early advertising. But business came to realize how powerful and indispensable was the aid to nation-wide and world-wide distribution of products. So truthful, informative advertising became dominant."

J. D. Mooney, president of the General Motors Export Company, sought the aid of the delegates in having their governments "reverse the trend of the last ten years in international affairs" and break down tariff barriers.

William Harrison, chairman of the United Newspapers, Ltd., of London, asked for rationalization of international commerce and reduction of the trade barriers in Europe. He advocated abolition of double taxation whereby British business in Germany is taxed at both ends as is German business in Britain.

CHINESE KILLED IN SOVIET CLASH, REPORTS STATE

Tokyo, August 12.—(AP)—Two Chinese were killed and several wounded early yesterday in a clash between Russian and Chinese outposts, said a message from Manchuria to the Renko News Agency. The clash is reported to have occurred near Adagaitovsky.

Another collision between Chinese cavalry forces and soviet troops, with machine guns in action, was reported today. It was stated there were considerable casualties on both sides.

A Renko dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, says according to information received there from the eastern frontier of the U. S. S. R., the soviet government has threatened to send nine river gunboats from the Amur to Harbin if the dispute over the Chinese Eastern railway is not settled by August 15.

A Manchuria message to the Renko says the Dalai Lama, agency of the soviet government, has been closed because of Chinese pressure.

CADDY, 16, KIDNAPED FROM CHICAGO COUNTRY CLUB

Chicago, August 12.—(AP)—A 16-year-old caddy, Frank Yosek, was kidnapped from the Ravello County Club course at Homewood, Ill., yesterday in view of several players. Today police were still seeking him and his abductors, two women and two men.

While being driven from Homewood to Chicago the boy leaped from the automobile and sought refuge in a house, the owner hiding him in the attic when he cried that he was being kidnapped. His abductors, however, followed and found him, and continued on toward Chicago.

One of the men was identified as Yosek's brother, Peter, 25, of Detroit. Homewood police said. They found a letter at the caddy's home which led to the belief that the boy was needed in a plot connected by a group of Detroit racketeers.

WEDDED FOR VOICE, WIFE GETS COURT TO MAKE HIM SING

Chicago, August 12.—(AP)—Once more the neighbors of John Ropavac will hear the golden voiced tenor of the west side singer "My Angelina" in the morning and possibly also at night.

The signing will be done by court order.

Mrs. Ropavac testified that she married her husband because of his voice, but that he never sings any more, and that he frequently got drunk.

The court ruled that any woman who marries a man for his golden voice has a right to hear him sing, and ordered Ropavac to sing to his wife twice a day.

YOUTHS CONFESS TO TWO SLAYINGS OF CHICAGO MEN

Chicago, August 12.—(AP)—Two recent slayings were solved today, police said, by confessions of two youths captured Saturday.

Robert Camy, 18, a graduate of the New Harmony, Ind., high school, and Earl Nicholson, 20, of Chicago, were identified during yesterday's police showup by 25 robbery victims.

They told of having committed many murders, including the holdup of George Schreiner's pharmacy, in which Schreiner was killed, and the robbery and slaying of Leon Raymond, an Oak Park druggist.

Schreiner was killed, the confessions said, because the youths "thought he was after a gun." Raymond was killed "because he looked dangerous."

POLICEWOMAN SUED

Mrs. Hughes and J. B. Clements Made Defendants.

The charge that Mrs. M. B. Hughes, city policewoman, attempted to collect $20 from her for J. B. Clements by means of arrest, was made in a damage suit filed Monday in Fulton superior court by Mrs. W. J. Evans, proprietor of a beauty shop at 501 Ponce de Leon, N. E. Mrs. Evans asks $25,000 damages from Mrs. Hughes and Clements on two counts.

Mrs. Evans charges Mrs. Smith with locking her up on a charge of passing a bad check, and refusing to allow her to use the telephone or to allow her lawyer to see her, and alleges that Mrs. Hughes used her office as a policewoman in an effort to "extort" the $20.

In explanation, Mrs. Evans alleges that she signed a $20 check, post-dated, with the understanding that if a machine she obtained from Clements, who operates as the Rhod Rub Southeast Company, failed to take in an agreed amount of money the deal was off. The machine failed to take in the stipulated amount, and Clements took it back but failed to surrender the check, Mrs. Evans says. The check was given as a conditional note, the plaintiff alleges. Mrs. Evans claims that the word "note" had been written on the check, and alleges that Clements either substituted another check when she went to sign it or had the word "note" removed. The case made against Mrs. Evans by Mrs. Hughes and Clements was dismissed by Recorder A. W. Callaway, the petition, filed by Attorney T. L. Slappey, states.

COUNTERFEITING PAIR CONFESS IN U. S. COURT

Bill Bartlett, 19, and Charles Booker, Negro Chauffeur, Held Under $5,000 Bonds.

Bill Bartlett, 19, of Stockbridge, and Charles Booker, 32, negro chauffeur for Dr. George Brown, of 80 Fourteenth street, N. E., who had been taken into custody by government agents Saturday and Sunday nights, respectively, both made full and complete confessions in preliminary hearings before United States Commissioner Griffith Monday on charges of counterfeiting coins and were committed to the Fulton tower. Bartlett was held in default of $5,000 bond and Booker in default of two $5,000 bonds.

Bartlett was arrested Saturday night when, according to the officers who took him into custody, he was caught in the act of making spurious half-dollar coins. Informed by banks that these counterfeiters were in circulation, an investigation was started which culminated in the arrest. In his confession, Bartlett stated that he had first tried the coin-making experiment in January, 1928, and that later he had served a six-month sentence in Clayton county for the theft of automobile tires. After his release, he stated, he began his counterfeiting activities again and succeeded in passing a number of the fake coins.

Following Booker's arrest officers went to his quarters at Dr. Brown's home on Peachtree street and there found crude counterfeiting apparatus and a few spurious coins. They were submitted as evidence before United States Commissioner Griffith Monday morning.

Booker's confession in federal court stated that he had once served a year's term for robbery. His counterfeiting operations, he stated, had been carried on in the kitchen of the house where he was employed but that his efforts had not been sufficiently successful to enable him to pass any of the coins.

COMMITTEE NAMED FOR 122D SOLUTION

here, it being the opinion of the gathering that no definite steps should be taken either for or against the plan until this is done.

In the face of spirited protests, high officials of the war department Monday declared that it was not their intention to force the reorganization of the 122d infantry regiment into a coast artillery unit, according to a dispatch from Washington Monday night. It was declared that the plans had been formulated for the formation of coast defense activities throughout the country, but that no attempt would be made to dictate how this should be handled by different communities, this being left entirely up to local authorities.

Many Praise Unit.
At the chamber of commerce meeting Mr. Alston read a number of telegrams from private citizens and army officers praising the efficiency of the 122d and urging its continuance as an infantry regiment, and an explanatory letter from General Richmond P. Davis, commander of the fourth corps area urged the conversion into a coast artillery unit as a means of conforming with the plans of national defense, which have been formulated by the war department.

His letter declared that units which cannot undertake the work assigned to them by the department and military men who cannot conform to these policies are liabilities rather than assets.

"If this regiment cannot take the place allocated to it by the war department, as much as I am interested in it, I am firmly of the opinion that it should not be converted but should actually be disbanded and allocation of this unit to some state where it can obtain full support not only of the members but also of the local communities," the letter declared.

Parker's Position.
Interviewed by The Constitution Monday night regarding latest developments in the situation, General Parker merely said that his previous statement still stood. He reiterated my statement previously made, "that the plan for the conversion of the 122d infantry into a regiment of coast artillery originated in the war department and was not the idea of the 122d infantry," Monday, August 5, 1929. I don't believe that any official of the war department will state that I knew anything about these plans prior to that time.

He added that he had presented the situation to the guard officers and that they had expressed their thanks to him for clarifying the situation. While they took no definite action, he said, they agreed to take the matter under advisement for the time being.

Trained as Infantrymen.
Officers of the 122d, while declining to express an opinion on the situation, pointed out that the present personnel of the regiment had been trained as infantrymen and that the proposed change would necessitate an entirely new course of training for the regiment, which is a highly specialized branch of the service. It was also stated that since other cities in the state wanted a coast artillery unit, there was no reason why it should not be given to them.

An entirely different viewpoint was expressed by Roy LeCraw, who deems much for Atlanta in causing additional men to be assigned here, with a corresponding increase in the pay roll, while the equipment would be the best in the army.

Joseph McCord spoke against the proposed change declaring that an infantry regiment would be of much more value if needed to take a riot or any similar disturbance. He cited the fact that one of the main arguments used in securing the federal reserve bank for Atlanta was the fact that the presence of the 122d infantry assured adequate protection.

McCord Against Conversion.
"In my opinion," he declared, "coast defense guns would be of little value in the event of a riot or any other disturbance. The federal reserve bank is needed. An infantry regiment is undoubtedly best for this kind of work and I can see no reason for the change."

Colonel Charles Cox, former commanding officer of the regiment, spoke at some length opposing the change, declaring that the regiment was being "laid away" a thoroughly competent unit.

Officers in a coast artillery regiment have to be trained in a different way, he stated, and in spite of everything, officers in the 122d would not last if the conversion were made.

"As a regiment of infantry they have made a wonderful record and I see no reason why all their valuable experience should be thrown away. There also is something else to be considered," he went on, "and that is you won't get all this equipment. The 122d infantry is entitled to many things in this line now which it hasn't got and there is no reason to believe that a conversion to a coast artillery unit would help the situation."

Little Difficulty Seen.
Major Sam Cronin spoke much in the same manner, pointing out that there had been great difficulty in obtaining a full regiment of infantry and there was no reason to believe that an artillery regiment could be obtained with any less difficulty. He also repeated the opinion that promises of new equipment should not be taken too seriously, since army orders are subject to change on very brief notice or no notice at all.

"Atlanta needs an infantry regiment for its own protection," he concluded, "and the war department is riding over the wishes of the community in trying to establish a coast artillery unit, which is no way essential at this time and in this locality."

Mr. LeCraw, in speaking in favor of the proposed change, declared that Adjutant General Homer C. Park had been wholeheartedly behind the plan and had made it very positive that all officers in the existing regiment would be given an equal rank in the new organization and that some 25 would be promoted.

Thinks Change Beneficial.
In answer to a question, Mr. LeCraw stated that the war department undoubtedly would conform with the wishes of the governor of the state in any matter having to do with the national guard, but that since General Parker had voiced his approval of the plan, it seemed that the governor likewise was in favor of it. He gave it as his opinion that the change would be beneficial in every way.

"I wish to make it plain," he stated, "that the proposed change in no way is a reflection on the 122d. The only thing that has functioned wonderfully well since its formation in 1923 and is highly thought of. The regiment is not, however, allocated to any brigade or division but is an 'orphan' organization. Being in the nature of an extra unit, it has been and will continue to be the object of attacks as an unnecessary expense. This is especially so since President Hoover has announced a reduction in the cost of national defense."

Advantage of Allocation.
"To convert this unit into a coast artillery regiment would mean its definite allocation into the national defense plans of the war department and would mean that it would be regarded in a more kindly light in Washington."

"The change would mean bringing some 300 extra men here and very latest in equipment. This would include automobile transportation for the entire unit, making it much more mobile and for this reason much more valuable as a means of local protection in time of need. The 155-millimeter guns would of course be of little value in quelling riots, but automatic pistols are standard equipment and these would serve this purpose admirably."

"I have been authorized by General Parker to say that every officer would be given at least equal rank in the event of a change and that there would be many promotions," he concluded.

Mr. LeCraw was followed by Colonel Cox and Major Cronin, both of whom spoke against the proposed change.

"Let the organization stay as it is," was the plea of Colonel Cox. "They have been trying to get a coast artillery regiment into Georgia for seven years. It is my opinion that the best interest of all would be served by leaving the situation as it stands."

The full text of General Davis' letter follows:

"Mr. Phillips Alston, 'Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, 'Dear Mr. Alston:

"I note with some interest that you have appointed a committee to consider the proposed conversion of the 122d infantry into an artillery regiment."

"I notice also in this connection some erroneous statements which I think it desirable should be brought to your attention."

"In the beginning it may be stated that neither J. General Parker, nor anyone else officially knew anything about this proposed conversion until a paper came from Washington suggesting it."

"It is very much regretted that in the same article which carries the statement in regard to your committee there was lugged in the idea that local petty quarrels had something to do with this proposition."

"This proposition is purely a national defense affair. In taking stock, the war department has found that the four corps area units have not been organized in accordance with the national defense requirements. There is too little artillery, too much cavalry and the 122d infantry is an extra infantry regiment."

"Recently the proposition was put up to Alabama to convert their cavalry outfit into field artillery. This was accomplished without any hullabaloo either on the part of the units involved, the state authorities or the local community."

Georgia Proposal.
"A similar proposition is now proposed that this extra regiment of infantry, independent as it were, should be converted into a GPF regiment so as to give an additional regiment of artillery."

"GPF units are second to none in the military establishment. It was my good fortune to have a brigade of this caliber in the recent war, and the equipment is recognized as second to no artillery equipment that has ever been devised."

"It is a distinct compliment to a regiment to propose assigning these guns to it, and I am free to state that not all regiments are qualified to take up this service."

"Through General Cox I have been more or less closely acquainted with the 122d infantry and feel that it will be a distinct asset as a GPF regiment, and when all is said and done it should have more prestige as such than it does as an independent regiment."

"The San Francisco regiment is just such a regiment and an outstanding unit of the California national guard."

Support of Department.
"Of course I cannot take it upon myself to predicate any action which your committee might take in the premises, but I can only say this, that I consider it the fundamental duty of all local communities to support the national defense policy of the war department."

"The military unit that cannot undertake the work assigned to it in the national defense and the military man who cannot conform to the policies of national defense are liabilities rather than assets."

"If this regiment cannot take the place allocated to it by the war department, as much as I am interested in it I am firmly of the opinion that it should not be converted, but should actually be disbanded and allocation of this unit made to some state where it can obtain full support not only of the members of it but also of the local communities."

"I have written this letter solely with the idea that you would have full data in the premises from an authoritative source."

WASHINGTON WILL NOT FORCE REGIMENT CHANGE.
BY GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

Washington, August 12.—(Special.) In the face of spirited protests, high officials of the war department today disclaimed all intention of forcing the proposed conversion of the 122d infantry into a coast defense regiment against the wishes of the community.

While the proposal is under consideration here and may yet be approved, it was insisted that the matter rests entirely with Georgia state officials—more particularly, Governor L. G. Hardman and Adjutant-General Parker. In behalf of General Charles P. Summerall, army chief of staff, it was stated that the federal government has made no move towards imposing the state of Georgia to adopt the proposal. The following report on the situation was authorized:

Report Authorized.
Briefly, it was stated, the war department high command has decided on a policy calling for the expansion of coast defense activities through the organization of coast guard artillery regiments of state national guards where they are needed. In doing so, however, it was asserted that the department has not suggested any given course for the various coastal stations to follow in bringing their units up to desired standards. If the state of Georgia, for example, through its accredited officials, wants to carry out the department's wishes by abandoning one of its regular infantry regiments and organizing in its place a new artillery unit, that is a matter entirely for officials of the state to decide."

The department officials here pointed out, will not seek to influence the procedure of any state. Moreover, nothing more than a formal request, if this, will be made on any state to bring its coast defense up to federal requirements. At the same time officials expressed no hesitancy in saying that it was the basic principle of the department that an artillery unit would be organized. It was made clear that in the event of war the 122d, for reasons of military expediency, would probably be converted immediately into a coast defense unit.

But so far as ordering Georgia national guard officials to make the change, it was said that the idea is absurd. The inference was left that the coast defense policy, applying only to those states on the seaboard, is one to be worked out gradually, without involving the necessity for haste in execution on the part of the various commonwealths.

Parker in Washington.
Adjutant General Parker was in Washington last week for a conference on the subject with General Summerall and Colonel Ernest P. Redmond, acting chief of the militia bureau. The nature of the conversations taking place and the decision reached, if any, are not known, war department officials confining themselves to the statement that the general situation was discussed.

Summarizing the developments, high officials let it be known that they have no desire to become involved in the controversy, nor to be held responsible for any action taken. If the governor and the adjutant general decide on the plan to disband the infantry regiment, the department here will be expected to approve the program. But if the proposal is not adopted, it will not matter much in Washington.

One effect of the Georgia national guard row, it is learned, has been to reveal an important United States government military secret. In formulating the policy for improvement of coast defense, department officials had planned to go about the program cautiously without the necessity of announcing to the world what it was doing. The Georgia controversy, however, has served to bring plans into the open, forcing officials to admit that the plan was general in scope.

Premature Blast Of Fireworks Hurts Ten at Festival

Chicago, August 12.—(AP)—Fireworks piled in a school yard as part of a celebration arranged for a church festival exploded, injuring 10 persons and shattering windows in nearby buildings. Several hundred men and women attending the festival fled for cover when the explosion occurred.

A burning cigaret was believed responsible for setting fire to the sky rockets, Roman candles and elaborate set pieces which had been placed in the middle of the yard.

"Make Hair Grow while the sun shines"

"It is a well known phenomenon that in the summer the growth of hair is more rapid," says Dr. Arnold Lorand, Vienna Dermatologist.

THAT Hair grows faster in the summer than in any other season is an established scientific fact. You can take advantage of this seasonal peculiarity by starting Thomas' hair and scalp treatment at once.

Your hair will respond more quickly to this famous proved method of treatment now than at any other time. Within an unusually short time your dandruff will disappear, hairfall will stop, and new hair will actually be visible on the thin and bald spots. Call at the Thomas' office and talk your problem over with the specialist in charge. He will gladly examine your scalp without charge or obligation and frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do for you.

SUGAR FOR HEALTH

A NOTED fashion specialist announces that "Emaciation is going out!" Leading couturiers are developing styles in an attempt to restore normal beauty to semi-starved bodies. In selecting lovely models for reviews, stage directors are eliminating the very thin.

In other words, skin and bones, half-starved bodies, are no longer smart. The barber-pole figure has run its day and curves have returned.

Food scientists and physicians are delighted with this change in styles. It means that millions of women will now abandon dangerous reducing diets which caused, in many cases, permanent injuries to health. It means fewer cases of tuberculosis and nervous disorders—the rewards of semi-starvation. No longer tortured by a foolish mandate of fashion requiring extreme slimmness, women can now pay attention to balanced, nourishing diets.

Adults and children must eat adequate, varied foods in order to have health. First emphasis belongs upon milk, vegetables and fruits. Cereals, eggs, meats and desserts are important in the varied diet.

In promoting the health of your family through proper foods, remember that sugar is the supreme seasoning. It makes the varied diet palatable and enjoyable so that people are encouraged to eat properly. Serve at least one raw and one cooked fruit and vegetable daily. Sprinkle sugar on grapefruit. Prepare tasteful, stewed fruits. Add a dash of sugar to each vegetable while it is cooking in little water. This is an old secret recently rediscovered by four well-known women cooking experts. It does not make the vegetable taste sweet. The dash of sugar improves the natural vegetable flavors, adds freshness, and improves the color.

Get the news quickly to American women that emaciation is no longer fashionable. Guard the health of children and adults with proper foods, sweetened for enjoyment. The Sugar Institute.

MRS. NORA HAWKINS.

Sargon has, through its superlative merit, reached the point where it is acknowledged to be one of the greatest health-giving remedies of modern times. It is restoring health to countless thousands by methods undreamed of only a few years ago. An instance of the amazing powers of Sargon is shown by the statement of Mrs. Nora Hawkins, 163 Harris St., N. W., and the mother of six children, who said:

"Ever since I had an attack of acute indigestion six years ago, I've suffered with stomach trouble. I've had to be very careful about my diet because nearly everything I ate seemed to ferment in my stomach and for hours after a meal I could taste sour acids in my throat. Sometimes I'd have terrible attacks of vomiting that would almost exhaust my strength, and my back would be weak and pain me for days afterwards. I also suffered from sciatic pains in my right hip and leg, that hurt me almost like toothache. Lots of nights I couldn't find a comfortable position in the bed and I'd be so nervous I'd have to get up and take a hot bath before I could get to sleep. I had to go to sleep. My entire system became badly run down and I felt so tired all the time it was a drag for me to do my work. I took all kinds of medicine without getting any better and had reached the point where I was about ready to give up, when I started taking Sargon."

"The first bottle did me so much good I kept right on taking it and now there's not an ache or pain left in my body. It's wonderful the way Sargon builds up strength! I just feel like an entirely different person and I never have the slightest trouble with my stomach. What a wonderful relief it is not to have those awful sciatic pains or be nervous any more! I sleep soundly all night and get up feeling refreshed and full of energy. I can truly say that I'm in better health now than I've been in six years."

"I think it's simply marvelous what Sargon has done for me and I tell all my friends that it certainly is one medicine you can depend on for splendid and lasting results."

The special Sargon representative at Jacobs' main store, 6 and 8 Marietta St., is explaining the merits of this revolutionary new medicine to hundreds daily. Sargon may also be obtained at all Jacobs' drug stores throughout Atlanta.—(adv.)

FUR SHIP STRANDED ON COAST IN ARCTIC

Rescue Vessel En Route
When Radio Message of Plight Received.

Seattle, Wash., August 12.—(P)—Stranded on the bleak arctic coast of Siberia, 300 miles east of the Kolyma river, the crew of the Norwegian fur ship Elisif today awaited the arrival of the Russian freighter Stavotol.

The three-masted motorship was beset by its crew of 20 men to prevent its foundering. A radio message said the men had plenty of provisions and that good weather prevailed.

Captain Evan Larsen, of Brevik, Norway, commanded the ship which was owned by the Swenson Fur Trading Company of Seattle.

Recently freed from year's imprisonment in the ice pack off North cape, the ship was westward bound toward the Kolyma river when she was again caught in the grinding ice Saturday night. She was so badly damaged that the captain decided she had to be beached.

Clyde M. Huntley, father of Charles Huntley, 21-year-old radio operator, received the news of the wreck and of the safety of the crew. Bob Gleason, young Huntley's chum, who is radio operator of the Swenson trader Nanuk, also in the arctic, sent the information to Seattle.

The message indicated that the rescue vessel was expected to reach the Elisif crew in several hours.

The Elisif left Seattle July 10, 1928, for the Siberian arctic. The Swenson company has a contract with Gostorg, the soviet state trading organization, to deliver general merchandise to trading stations on the arctic rim of Siberia.

STORM DESTROYS
CROPS, DAMAGES
ONTARIO HOUSES

Toronto, August 12.—(P)—Ruined crops and damaged buildings today marked the path of a storm which swept through this part of Ontario over the week-end.

Wind, rain and hail destroyed orchard crops and flattened grain, while lightning struck several buildings, causing loss by fire.

The worst of the storm was felt Saturday when hail in the vicinity of Agincourt destroyed 50 per cent of the oats crop, did extensive damage to cornfields and virtually destroyed apples and garden crops.

Numerous traffic accidents were reported on the roads about here, caused when motorists blinded by the storm drove off the highway, many cars overturning in the ditch.

Residents of Laskey, a village near here, escaped possible injury when the storm broke before they had assembled in a large tent for a community celebration. Lightning struck the tent, tearing it to tatters.

OPIUM CONTAINERS
VALUED AT $100,000
SEIZED IN GOTHAM

New York, August 12.—(P)—Three packing cases containing more than a ton of opium worth $100,000 at wholesale prices were seized in a warehouse on Mercer street in the downtown district today and two suspects were taken to the federal building for questioning.

The two agents who made the raid had been working on the case for nine months under direction of Chief Agent George Cunningham.

Each of the cases was marked with the name of Fisher, which was believed to be fictitious. Truckmen said they had taken the cases to the warehouse from a loft building in Greenwich street.

From information in their possession federal agents said they had reason to believe that within the past year three consignments of opium of the same magnitude as that seized today had been distributed from the warehouse.

Since 1919, when tobacco was first grown on a large scale in Georgia, Mr. Westbrook has been active in experimental work on the crop. He was instrumental in founding the coastal plains experimental station, at Tifton, and this year's splendid tobacco crop is said to be due largely to information farmers have been able to secure as a result of this station's work.

Wiley Jones To Celebrate Opening of Furniture Shop

Today and Wednesday have been designated house-warming days by the new Wiley Jones Furniture Shoppe. The store will be open to visitors on both days and evenings from 7 to 10 o'clock.

WILEY JONES.

The public is cordially invited to attend. A unique feature of the occasion will be the offering of a handsome wing chair to the successful guest who presents in person the best written slogan for the new shop. The only proviso is that it must not contain more than seven words. In case of a tie duplicate prizes will be awarded. The new Wiley Jones Furniture Shoppe is located at 671 Peachtree street in the space formerly occupied by the furniture department of Stephen Philibosian, Inc. Many will remember the first Wiley Jones Furniture Shoppe out on Peachtree street, when it was a pioneer in the section that is now a fast-growing retail district. Five years ago Mr. Jones sold out this business and is only now returning to Peachtree street with the new Wiley Jones Furniture Shoppe. In the intervening five years Mr. Jones has been connected with one of the large department stores in the city as manager and buyer of the furniture department. For 30 years the name of Wiley Jones has been prominently known in the retail furniture business and he has a wide following of friends and customers in Atlanta who will wish him success in his new location. Mr. Jones called attention to the fact that people are all becoming more beauty conscious and that good taste must prevail in present-day house-furnishings. "It is our intention," said Mr. Jones, "to most carefully select all our stocks with this idea in view, to offer even in the most moderately priced merchandise furniture that is soundly constructed and that embodies these true fundamentals of beauty—simplicity, harmony and good taste."

Associated with Mr. Jones is his experienced selling organization, including J. P. Thomas, Mrs. W. P. Harbin, Miss Mable Buchanan, and the former Philibosian furniture department personnel, Henry Cooper and Mrs. Grace Naedle.

The excellent appointments and outstanding beauty of the new Wiley Jones Furniture Shoppe is enhanced by the rich display of handsome oriental rugs in the connecting shop of Stephen Philibosian, Inc. Mr. Jones and his staff extend to their friends and the public a most cordial invitation to visit them in the new store.

GRAND JURY WILL GET LOVING CASE TODAY

Murder Indictments Against Three To Be Asked by State.

Ocala, Ga., August 12.—(AP)—An Irwin county grand jury tomorrow will investigate the disappearance of Harry Loving, of Huntington, W. Va., who dropped from sight while passing through Ocala in 1924 with two companions who were "hitch-hiking" their way from West Virginia to Florida.

The state will seek the indictment, on charges of murder, of Aubrey Carlyle Hoover and James Hoover, brother and companion of Loving at the time of his disappearance, and of Harry K. Sligh, owner of the house which burned to the ground in the fire and the three youths stopped here.

All three are under arrest. Aubrey Carlyle Hoover was taken in custody in Dayton Beach, Fla.; his brother James Hoover was taken in custody in R. I. and Sligh was arrested here.

Although all three deny the killing of the 22-year-old youth, the state contends that the three youths were in Sligh's home, later to be identified as Sligh, whose wife pressed an insurance claim.

Sligh was found in California and tried and acquitted on an arson charge. Meanwhile, Loving's mother, who resides in Huntington, has made known her belief that the three youths were in the fire and buried at Seneca, S. C., as Sligh, is really that of her son.

The case had been expected to reach the grand jury today, but the presentation of evidence impossible on the opening day.

The building will cost about $50,000,000, Mr. Chasin said, and was planned as a center of French business and cultural influence in North America.

The first three floors will house the French consulate, French government administrative offices and permanent exhibits of French arts and manufactures. Mr. Chasin said.

Heath and his wife are charged with assaulting, resisting and interfering with a federal officer in the performance of his duty, resisting an officer's attempts to seize their boat, and using a dangerous weapon in resisting him. Heath's bond was set at $50,000 and his examination scheduled for August 26.

10,000 ACRES LAID WASTE BY WEST FIRES

Spokane, Wash., August 12.—(AP)—Hundreds of fire fighters today desperately sought to stem the fiery torrent that in two days has swept through 10,000 acres of valuable timber in the Barnaby creek country on the Colville Indian reservation in eastern Washington.

The fire is the worst of the season in the district. It burned over 6,000 acres in a little more than two hours yesterday. An easterly gale swept the blaze through the tree tops after forest officials believed they had the fire under control.

Officials estimated that the fire had swept through 8,000,000 feet of yellow pine and several million feet of mixed timber of merchantable size. The camp of the Redlund Lumber Company was in the path of the blaze, but not in immediate danger.

Camps established by fighters were destroyed yesterday and twice the force of more than 300 men was forced to flee before the flames. Truckloads of supplies and additional men were sent from Spokane.

Seven fires covering a total of 2,000 acres were out of control on property of the Pend Oreille Timber Protective Association in eastern Washington.

OCEAN LINERS HELD UP BY FOG AROUND NEW YORK

New York, August 12.—(AP)—Three ocean liners, among them the Leviathan, with 2,048 passengers, were held outside the harbor today by a dense fog which shrouded the lower bay and interfered with ferryboat service and harbor traffic.

The Leviathan anchored off Sandy Hook, along with the American Farmer and the Hamburg. Other vessels which were past The Narrows before the fog settled down proceeded slowly to their piers, although the Sannaria was forced to anchor off the Statue of Liberty for a time when progress became hazardous.

The ferryboat Roosevelt, plying between Staten Island and the Battery, and the ferryboat John Englis, plying between Staten Island and Brooklyn, collided near the St. George slip. Only slight damage was caused and no one was injured.

The steamer Boston, of the Eastern Steamship Company, was forced to dock at Whitehouse Landing and passengers were taken to Manhattan on a Long Island railroad train.

High Lights in the Cotton Market

BY THEO. H. PRICE
Editor Commerce and Finance, New York

Until the government report was issued on Thursday last week's cotton market was sustained more by fear than by confidence. The department figures were not little larger than expected, but everybody had been afraid that they might be lower, and when announced they came upon a market from which most of the short interest had been eliminated.

The result was an immediate drop of from 50 to 60 points. At this level the execution of buying orders for account of European and American speculators checked the decline but it was soon renewed upon reports of showers in west Texas. By the next day the close the market had dropped a cent a pound.

In detail the report indicated a total crop of 15,543,000 bales, a yield per acre of 159.3 bushels and a condition of 69.6. But these figures mean nothing, although they have encouraged the believers in a big yield. The cotton crop is made or unmade by the weather during August and September, and the outlook may be very much changed within the next 60 days. Therefore, it would seem wise for cotton spinners to buy at least a portion of their requirements if such prices were distinctly firm about the prices now current. If not wanted the cotton so bought can probably be resold at a profit when the goods market as soon as it had time to digest the government figures.

In any event 18 cents does not seem to be a high price for cotton under present conditions.

That the distributors of cotton goods are disposed to take this view was indicated by the action of the dry goods market as soon as it had time to digest the government figures.

Staple fabrics did not decline in sympathy with cotton futures, and in some cases prices were distinctly firm on buying by large dealers who had apparently been waiting for the very opportunity offered.

Goods thus bought are probably intended to fill in the vacuum created by the strike in Lancashire. It is still unsettled and now threatens to last much longer than anyone had expected. It has even been suggested that the strikers are being used as tools in the British political game and that they have been induced to quit work by the opponents of Ramsay MacDonald in the hope of discrediting the latter.

STERCHI STORES REPORT SALES AT 101 PER CENT

Knoxville, Tenn., August 12.—Sterchi Bros. Stores, Inc., operating 60 furniture stores in eight southern states, report total sales for the past six months to be approximately 101 1/2 per cent of the same period in 1928.

Officials of the organization regard this showing as highly gratifying, in view of general business conditions and the fact that the firm has five partnerships and 28 corporations into one corporate Sterchi organization has naturally occupied much of the attention of the executives.

"In line with our policy declared to stockholders throughout the south," stated J. G. Sterchi, president, today, "we have been successful in concentrating efforts on retail sales, rather than stressing wholesale departments."

"About August 15 Sterchi Stores announce the opening of five additional retail stores, located at strategic points in the south. Sites for these establishments have been determined and the company is expected to fully measure up to the progress exhibited by the older stores."

COMMONWEALTH PREFERRED STOCK TO BE OFFERED

A syndicate, headed by Otis & Co., and including First National Company of Detroit, the Harris Forbes Corporation, the Dominion Securities Corporation and Banks, Huntley & Company, will offer shortly an issue of $10,000,000 Commonwealth Securities, Incorporated, 6 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock.

Each share of this preferred stock is convertible at par into common shares of the company, at $95 per share up to and including August 1, 1930; at $105 per share thereafter up to and including August 1, 1931; at $115 per share thereafter up to and including August 1, 1932; and at $140 per share thereafter up to and including August 1, 1933.

Net income for 12 months ended June 29, 1929, was equivalent to 125 1/2 per cent on the average paid-in capital and paid-in surplus during the period. Such net income, after all charges, including federal taxes, as reported by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst, plus estimated income at the rate of 6 per cent on the new capital to be provided by current financing, totaled $1,263,060, or 2 1/5 times the maximum annual dividend requirements of the company's preferred stock to be outstanding.

AUTO EXPORTS FOR 1929 SET NEW HIGH RECORDS

Washington, August 12.—(AP)—A new high record for automotive exports was established in the United States during the first six months of 1929.

The commerce department announced today that they were valued at $24,842,921, which exceeded the corresponding period of 1928, the previous record, by $2,200,361.

In the last four years the announcement said, the value of automotive exports has increased 94.9 per cent. The value of exports for the first six months of 1926 being $12,695,573. Passenger car shipments showed an increase of $25,256 over the corresponding period of last year, while truck exports were 74.4 per cent greater.

TOBACCO MART SHOWS FIRST MARKED DROP

Sales of First Three Weeks Exceed 1928 Record Three Million Dollars.

Macon, Ga., August 12.—(AP)—There was a noticeable falling off in the volume of tobacco offered on the 22 bright leaf markets of south Georgia today, the opening of the fourth week's sales. The price also was lower than it has been, due to inferior quality of weed offered.

That the season is drawing to a close is indicated from several points. Thomsville reports that sales will end there all probably on Friday. In Valdosta there was an abundance of good tobacco, for which high prices were paid, but there also was a great volume of low grade weed in the same market, which reduced the average. There were many sales in Valdosta above 30 cents per pound, it was reported.

Weather conditions also were unfavorable today at some of the markets. Excessive heat and rains interfered with the sales.

The volume of sales, price paid and the average price paid in today's sales follows:

Markets:
Atlanta 20,000 $2,400.00 12.00

THREE-WEEK TOBACCO SALES BREAK 28 MARK.

Georgia's bright leaf tobacco crop has established a new record for returns in three weeks of sales and is ploughing on the way to a new mark that has exceeded $16,000,000.

Official figures for the third week of sales compiled by the department of agriculture Monday showed a total of 76,285 pounds for the week of $1,812,644.07, bringing the season's total to 70,622,054 pounds returning $1,425,654.47 to growers. This exceeds the 1927 money record by nearly $3,000,000 as that year 50,088,000 pounds brought $1,463,000. The season's average stands at $20 per hundred pounds.

The average price for last week was $18.67 per 100 pounds, the drop from the previous week reflecting the amount of tips and other inferior grades that made their appearance on the 22 markets.

Government estimates of Georgia's 1929 tobacco crop placed the production this season at slightly more than 79,000,000 pounds, bearing out observations of whoresome and high quality Georgia belt that the bulk of the crop had been sold.

Douglas assumed sales leadership of the 22 markets this past week with 3,243,940 pounds for an average of $19.81 per 100 pounds, with Tifton the previous week's leader in second place with 2,529,438 pounds selling for $19.82 per hundred.

Markets showing sales of 2,000,000 pounds or more the past week included Valdosta, Nashville and Blacksburg.

The highest average for the week was paid at Claxton, where 536,522 pound-housemen generally expected sales to show sharp declines this coming week, with practically all the week grown in the state disposed of by September 1.

CAROLINA FEUD FLARES UP; 2 DEAD, GIRL SHOT

Marshall, N. C., August 12.—(AP)—The Landers boys met three members of the Stanton family and Albert King on a narrow mountain road yesterday. Before they parted two men were killed and a 12-year-old girl wounded in a flare-up of a family feud.

Arthur Stanton, 35; his daughter, Agnes, 12; his brother, Hubert, and King, 35, were riding down the road in King's car when they met Arnold and Sampson Landers in a truck. The two machines stopped. Arthur Stanton got out, then Hubert told county officers, the Landers boys started shooting. However, a tourist's car was struck by several bullets, said Arthur fired the first shot.

In the exchange of gunfire Arthur Stanton and King were killed. Hubert Stanton is in custody pending an investigation. All three were held in the county jail here.

Mountaineers of the section said there had been "bad blood" between the Landers and the Stanton families for some time.

The shooting occurred near the Tennessee-North Carolina line. King, accompanied by King, was taking his daughter to near Greenville, Tenn., where he recently moved.

PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR NEW BUILDINGS AT REINHARDT

Plans for further building development at Reinhardt college, in Wales, Ga., were announced Monday by S. C. Dobbs, chairman of the school's board of trustees, following return from an alumni reunion held there Saturday.

Plans for erection of a new administration building, a gymnasium and a girls' dormitory were discussed and approved. Mr. Dobbs recently gave the school a $100,000 vocational training building, a three-story structure housing the home economics and farm training divisions of the school work.

Reinhardt college was founded by Captain A. M. Reinhardt, who recognized the need for a school for mountain boys and girls. The first class was graduated in 1888. The school now has about 125 students enrolled on the fall term. One of the outstanding features of the institution is a large model dairy barn built by student labor and used to house the great dairy herd which supplies the school with dairy products.

WHITE WARNS G. O. P. ON TARIFF MEASURE

BY BASIL MANLY.

Washington, August 12.—(Special).—"The Smoot-Hawley tariff bill is loaded with political dynamite and may be as disastrous to the republic as the Payne-Aldrich bill was 20 years ago," William Allen White today told the correspondent of The Constitution.

"The western farmers," he said, "are not being fooled by the attempt to trade them a lot of meaningless and unprofitable increases in the agricultural schedules for substantial upward revision of the already top-heavy duties on manufactures."

"Unless the president asserts his influence forcefully and effectively," the Kansas editor continued, "there is more than a chance that the sad history of the Taft administration will repeat itself. There is no question when he declared for downward revision in his campaign speeches, but he failed to act at the critical time and so Seno Payne and Nelson W. Aldrich handed him a high tariff bill that he had either to approve or veto as a whole."

"I have been telling the republican politicians from my state for months that they had better get their alibis ready now without waiting for the bill to pass. And, if I am not mistaken, the wisest of them are already making it clear to their constituents that they cannot be held responsible for any upward revision of the industrial schedules. Senator Smoot is having his troubles now with sliding scales and other things, but his real difficulties will not begin until he tries to line up the western republicans and make them vote for his bill."

"It looks," the 'Emporia Sage' concluded, "like we might have stormy weather when congress reconvenes."

Science Listens to Fruit Fly Larvae Eating in Grapefruit

New York, August 12.—(P)—A glorified stethoscope that makes audible the sound produced by a Mediterranean fruit fly larva while eating inside of Florida grapefruit and oranges was disclosed here today in a departmental report of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Notwithstanding the amazing degree of delicacy attained by the amplifying instruments, the report says they are not of present use in combating the pest. They fail because they cannot also pick up the sounds the bug makes when the "walks" about inside the fruit.

Locate Bad Fruit.
The tests were made in search of means of distinguishing sound (in the sense of quality) fruit that may be shipped safely to market, from that which might harbor beneath a fine-looking skin the larvae of the fruit fly. These larvae grow within the fruit until they are ready to emerge for the fly stage of their lives.

As larvae they do their feeding with the aid of tusks resembling somewhat those of a walrus. United States entomologists reasoned that with such utensils the larvae might be noisy eaters. So, some time ago, they called upon the A. T. & T. and the Bell Telephone laboratories for co-operation. An expert was sent from New York to Florida with several trunks full of batteries, microphones, telephone receivers, vacuum tube amplifiers and other electrical apparatus—queer instruments, most of them, to install in an entomological laboratory.

Sounds Are Detected.
Several suspected grapefruit were placed on top of a telephone transmitter stethoscope. Forthwith from three of them issued sounds such as might come from spine-like hooks tearing off a tiny meal of fruit fiber. The noisy fruit was opened and inside were several living larvae.

But when a "quiet" grapefruit was opened no pest was there. Other fruit samples gave equally good results. However, it was found that the reputedly hungry larvae did not spend all their time in eating, so that the eating test alone was not economically practical. Efforts failed to devise apparatus to catch the still fainter sounds of larvae moving about.

Electrocution was tried by sending an electric current through the fruit, but it did not work. X-rays were shot through the fruit, but again the pest was unharmed.

The telephone report comments upon the thoroughness with which scientists of the United States government are experimenting with all kinds of measures calculated to curb this

She is a graduate of Washington seminary and during the past winter was enrolled as a member of the freshman class of Oglethorpe university.

SWISS FLIERS FOUND WORKING ON PLANE

Located After 3 Days at Lisbon Preparing for Flight to New York.

Lisbon, Portugal, August 12.—(AP)—Three Swiss aviators, missing for three days, were located here today working busily on their airplane, in which they shortly, possibly tomorrow, expect to take off on a flight to New York.

The aviators arrived here Saturday afternoon, landed their plane at Alverga airfield, and began in secret preparations for a trans-oceanic flight, from Lisbon to New York.

They are first giving their machine a thorough overhauling and arranging for extensive weather reports. It is their expectation to fly from the airfield to a big sandy area opposite Lisbon, from where they will start the following day, after refueling.

From the Azores they intend to fly towards Halifax and down the Atlantic seaboard to New York, stopping only if storms use up their petrol supply. They do not plan to land at the Azores.

The two airmen flew here Saturday from Gaxaux, France, making the 521 miles in six hours. The previous night they had spent at Escodade on the southwestern coast of Brittany, they left Le Bourget Thursday and when they were not reported, some fear for their safety was aroused.

Their names are: Oscar Kaeser, pilot; Kurt Luescher, backer and mechanic; and Alfred Tschopp, navigator and mechanic.

Tschopp said he would not make the flight, explaining he was "no use a sea." He said his weight would be substituted with gasoline, and he would await here news of his companions' arrival.

Their plane is named the Young Switzerland. Kaeser is just 22 years old, Luescher 21.

The plane will have a load of 650 gallons of petrol and 195 gallons of oil. It will carry a small pneumatic boat, rubber suits, and apparatus enabling the men to remain under water for five minutes. The plane also has a small opening from which the petrol can be emptied enabling it to float at sea.

NICARAGUAN ELECTION FRAUD CHARGE DENIED

University, Va., August 12.—(AP)—Charges that the 1928 Nicaraguan registration of voters contained many "repeaters" were untenable, in the opinion of the Nicaraguan national board of elections, Brigadier-General Frank R. McCoy, United States army, declared here tonight at the institute of public affairs.

General McCoy, as the personal representative of President Coolidge, served as chairman of the Nicaraguan election board prior to and during the election there last year in which General Jose Maria Moncada, the liberal candidate, defeated Adolfo Benard, conservative, for the presidency.

Referring to the 1928 registration of 150,618, declared by Nicaraguan press to be excessive in proportion to the country's population, General McCoy said: "The census of 1920, it is true, gave a total of 650,000 but that work was then eight years out of date and was notoriously inaccurate, its statistics being largely estimates with a wide percentage of error."

"The total vote November 4, which was 88 per cent of registration, confirmed this view. It was also the board's opinion that such cases of repeating as may have occurred without detection were rendered ineffective by the plan of marking votes with a stain on election day."

In presenting the record of the American electoral mission in Nicaragua, General McCoy noted that leaders of both political parties there as well as American and foreign residents made statements that the registrations had been fair and impartial. Prior to election, he said, General Moncada and Senor Benard exchanged letters in which they announced that they would request the United States to supervise the elections of 1932.

Authority for the supervised elections, General McCoy said, was the Stimson agreement of 1927, subscribed to by both the Nicaraguan government and revolutionists, both binding themselves to end civil war and to hold an election in 1928, under American supervision.

In discussing President Diaz's executive decree, prescribing election regulations under the chamber of deputies failed to pass the proposed election law, General McCoy answered critics of the decree with the statement that the act was approved by the supreme court of Nicaragua. Members of the election board established under the decree were allowed to take oath before the court, he said. It was also accepted by both political parties which nominated candidates under its provisions.

$250,000 JEWEL THEFT STIRS SUMMER COLONY

Wealthy Residents Perturbed as Reports of 2 Attempted Thefts Are Heard.

Beverly, Mass., August 12.—(AP)—Something akin to panic was felt here today by the wealthy summer residents of this seaside resort by the robbery last Saturday of $250,000 worth of jewelry from the exclusive West Beach estate of Sydney E. Hutchinson, of Philadelphia, broker and son-in-law of E. T. Stotesbury, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., international bankers. The thief, unassisted, climbed through a second story window leading to the bedroom of Mrs. Hutchinson, the former Edith L. Stott, early Saturday and plundered a dressing table before Mrs. Hutchinson could call for assistance.

Apprehensions among the wealthy residents further were caused by reports shortly after the Hutchinson robbery of attempted thefts at the houses of two other members of the colony. Francis L. Amory, of Boston, notified police that a maid in his household had been awakened by a man attempting to raise the screen of her window only an hour after the Hutchinson prowler had fled. The home of another Bostonian, Godfrey L. Cabot, also was entered recently and a considerable sum of cash taken before the thief was frightened away.

Work On Two Theories.

Police, who as yet have unearthed no tangible clue, are working on two theories in connection with the Hutchinson theft, one that the robbery was an inside job, and the other that the porch climber who pried his way into Mrs. Hutchinson's bedroom obtained his bearings by airplane observation. This last theory was given credence when Mrs. H. C. Erick, of Prides Crossing, reported that an airplane had flown low over the North Shore colony last week carrying a stranger who, as she plane swooped down over the wealthy homes, "shot the estates with a camera gun."

Belief that the theft may have been planned from the inside was given credence by discovery of a rifle owned by Mr. Hutchinson was found with its cartridges removed. Other circumstances, together with the discrimination evinced by the thief in discarding certain valuable less costly jewelry while helping himself to a $150,000 pearl necklace, an expensive diamond bracelet and several other valuable pieces led investigators to consider the possibility that he had a confederate within the house.

Examining Staff.

With this possibility in mind police and detectives representing insurance firms, have cross-examined virtually every member of the Hutchinson servant staff.

Mrs. Hutchinson had worn the necklace and bracelet a few hours before the theft at a dinner party given aboard the yacht Aztec by Russell Burrage, son of the owner, A. C. Burrage, copper magnate. Upon her return home she had placed them along with other jewelry, in the drawers of her dressing table.

U.S. CO-OPERATIVE WOOL AGENCY IS PLANNED

Washington, August 12.—(AP)—Officials of all wool co-operative marketing associations and producer-owned warehouse associations in the United States will meet with the federal farm board in Chicago early in October to form a national co-operative sales agency and an advisory council for the commodity.

This plan was announced by the board today after several conferences with officials of the National Wool Marketing Council and other wool marketing associations which had asked the board for the immediate selection of a commodity advisory council and for financial aid from the farm relief fund.

A similar petition is expected to be received by the board tomorrow from officials of the American Cotton Growers Exchange. At the board's offices it was indicated that on the basis of the present organization of leading cotton market agencies the selection of an advisory council for that crop appeared to be likely.

To Withhold Funds.

The decision of the board to withhold funds for the time being from the Wool Marketing Association was in keeping with its policy to bring about as large an amalgamation of wool marketing concerns of each major commodity as possible. A statement by the board declared that "it is apparent that one of the major problems confronting the wool associations is a need for the coordination of their selling efforts."

The board's conferences with the wool officials developed that of this year's 300,000,000-pound clip of wool, approximately 20,000,000 pounds will be handled by members of the national wool marketing council; 7,000,000 pounds by co-operatives who are not members of the council; 35,000,000 pounds by farmer-owned warehouse companies of Texas, California and New Mexico; and 5,000,000 pounds by local co-operative pools in western states. The board said that this total of nearly 70,000,000 pounds, or 25 per cent of the nation's entire wool clip, represents "actual or potential wool" which might be handled by a national co-operative marketing co-operation.

Advisory Council Possible.

The selection of an advisory council for wool is considered possible by the board because of the superior organization methods which have been developed among the wool co-operatives. The commodity advisory councils are authorized under the farm relief act and their function is intended to be that of generally supervising the production and marketing of the crop for which they are appointed.

By agreeing to the formation of a large national marketing corporation for wool, the board would bring its co-operative marketing program to the third crop. A marketing corporation has been organized for wheat, and the board has taken steps to make such an agency possible in the Florida citrus fruit area. Next the board will consider the marketing needs of cotton and then intends to examine the tobacco situation.

The incorporation of a $20,000,000 marketing concern for fruits and vegetables to be known as the United Growers of America, plans for which were announced in New York last night, was accomplished without the knowledge of the farm board. Some of the board's members were familiar with the undertaking but the board announced that the plans for this organization had not been presented to it.

The organizers also have asked for no indorsement by the board and the latter's members were said to be in no position to express any opinion whatsoever concerning the agency.

Inasmuch as the concern is presumed to have been organized in keeping with the general provisions of the farm relief act, it would be possible for its officials to make application for loans should any need for funds develop and for the board to grant such loans if it satisfied itself that the concern properly represented the fruit and vegetable industry.

STONE COMMENTS ON TOBACCO

Hopkinsville, Ky., August 12.—(AP)—In response to a query, James C. Stone, of Lexington, vice chairman of the federal farm board, said that the growers of dark fired tobacco will never be relieved of depression in their market until they adopt scientific methods of selling. He expressed the belief that this could be done now that the federal board is able to aid.

The letter, sent in response to an inquiry from D. H. Taylor, member of the Kentucky New Era staff here and made public by him today, expressed Mr. Stone's opinion that it would take some time to gather the necessary data and to inform the growers, but held that with this done a dark fired tobacco growers co-operative society could and would succeed despite the fact that the previous one failed in 1926.

Mr. Stone suggested that new outlets of dark fired tobacco should be sought and that the amount of such tobacco that the world market can absorb be determined and also the amount produced.

PRESIDENT HOOVER RETURNS TO CAPITAL

Executive's Wife Remains at Lodge With Son and Relatives.

Washington, August 12.—(AP)—President Hoover returned to Washington at 10:40 this morning from his camp in Virginia where he spent the week-end and observed his 55th birthday anniversary.

Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who have been the chief executive's guests over the week-end with Herbert Hoover, Jr., returned to the capital a few minutes behind the presidential party itself. They arrived at the White House with Colonel Lindbergh at the wheel of Mrs. Hoover's private automobile, and his wife and Herbert, Jr., as his passengers.

Mrs. Hoover, her son Allan, and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., remained at the fishing lodge. Mrs. Hoover and Allan have been at the camp since August 2. Allan, who had been ill from a stomach ailment, has practically recovered and they planned to return to Washington some time today.

Others in the week-end party were Secretary and Mrs. Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Milbank, Surgeon General and Mrs. Hugh S. Cumming, Hugh S. Cumming, Jr., Walter Newton, one of the president's secretaries, and Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, the White House physician.

As usual, the president spent the week-end almost entirely in rest. However, there was an informal observance of the president's 55th birthday Saturday evening, when his guests conspired and gave the chief executive a surprise party.

Over the week-end more work was done on the crude stone dams that the presidential parties are building along the Rapidan river to make fishing holes. In this, the president took part.

ALDERMAN TO HANG ON FEDERAL GROUND

Technical Objection to Execution Removed by Resentence.

Miami, Fla., August 12.—(AP)—Horse ace Alderman, Miami rum pirate, convicted of killing three government men on the high seas, will hang August 17 at the Fort Lauderdale coast guard base instead of atop the Broward county courthouse, federal Judge Halstead L. Ritter ruled today in handing down an amended sentence.

Judge Ritter had designated the Broward county jail at Fort Lauderdale, as the place of execution in the death sentence passed upon the 30-year-old convicted slayer of two coast guardsmen and one secret service agent. He termed today's order an amendment to the previous sentence, passed June 20, and explained that it had been found "necessary and desirable" to change the place of the hanging.

R. A. Hendricks, Alderman's attorney, contended, however, that the judge's order constituted a re-sentence of the convict and served to strengthen the appeal he is taking to the United States circuit court at New Orleans. The federal statutes provide the death sentence must be executed not less than 30 days nor more than 40 days after being passed, he asserted, and he gave notice he would submit these objections to the circuit court of appeals through his son, who already has left for New Orleans, to present the petition.

TEXTILE STRIKE IN TENN. PLANTS IS NOT EXPECTED

Elizabethton, Tenn., August 12.—(AP)—Reports prevalent in many sections of the state that another strike was brewing in the Bemberg and Glantzstoff plants were denied today by J. C. Donnelly, president of the local union of the United Textile Workers of America.

"This organization does not contemplate another strike," Donnelly said. "Things are moving along nicely."

PLANS APPROVED FOR FLYING FIELD AT CAMP PEAY

Nashville, Tenn., August 12.—(AP)—The United States department of commerce has approved plans for establishment of a flying field at Camp Peay at Tullahoma, it was announced here today. Adjutant-General W. O. Boyd and Sam Cook, of Tullahoma, obtained authority from Governor Horton for construction of a field of 40 acres after being passed, he asserted, and he gave notice he would submit these objections to the circuit court of appeals through his son, who already has left for New Orleans, to present the petition.

Georgia Sandlot Champions Entrain for Meridian, Miss., Tonight

CARDS PLAY IN TOURNAMENT AT MERIDIAN

Victory Will Send Georgia Boys to National Junior Series.

By Ralph McGill.
Another chapter in the big dream is just ahead for the sandlot champions of Georgia—the Inman Park Cardinals. They entrain tonight for Meridian, Miss. The district series will be played there. The big dream begins there. It leads on to the national series.

From Tampa and from Memphis, from a town in Mississippi and Alabama the sandlot champions are entraining today. For one of them there will be the big chance at the national series where the winner will be crowned the junior world champion in the program sponsored by the American Legion.

JOE GETS TO GO.

With the Cardinals tonight goes Joe Gershon, batboy—brother, than he has ever been in his life. He was selling scorecards at Spiller field yesterday when he heard the news. Most of the team were bustling off drinks in the stands. These boys had heard the news. Joe—the 10-year-old kid with the snapping dark eyes, "Joe going," they said as they passed with their buckets of food bottles. "Joe's going." The program was all set. The mascot and batboy was on the list—the squad was complete. Friends of sandlot baseball came to the rescue. Joe was about to be left at home. The local legion post sent him to Albany, where he and the Cardinals won the state title and the right to go to Meridian. The district series came under the jurisdiction of the national committee and they did not provide for batboys or mascots. Friends of sandlot baseball read about Joe's plight in The Constitution and they, together with The Constitution, saw to it that Joe's expenses were provided for.

FORMER SANDLOTTER.

One donor, who asked that his name be withheld, wrote: "I was a sandlotter and in passing will remark that Bob Wessels, erstwhile of Atlanta, now gone from here, was in 'our gang,' as was 'Big Bill' Thompson, likewise known to fame. Such giants as 'Cap' Anson, Mike Kelly, John Clarkson, Tommy Burns, Ned Williamson, Fred Pfeffer, Van Haltrud and similarly celebrated players frequently gathered on our sidelines and encouraged us and cheered us. The days and dates back to the early '20s, but in the time that has elapsed since I have always realized that men were just boys grown up. Predicated upon foregoing history it is a distinct pleasure to inclose my check for Joe Gershon—more power to him."

OTHERS AID.

The stenographer at the Henry Grady university and wrote the letter as her part in aiding the team. Tubby Walton sent in his contribution and wrote: "Here is my aid to Joe Gershon's transportation to the promised land. Send him down to my restaurant. I will furnish him with a lunch with plenty of power composed of country ham. It has the same effect on a country boy as dope on a hoodlum. It will furnish him with plenty of power to take them down. Luck always to the Cardinals—Tubby."

Others in the city joined in and so the Cardinals are complete once more—with the big dream on ahead. They leave tonight. There are Tommy Harper and "Moe" Kunsberg, pitchers; Arthur Lee, left-handed pitcher; Alf Anderson and Jack Hutchinson in the infield. The outfield boasts Bill Good, son of Manager Good, of the Cracker; Hugh Lyle and "Stent" Scarboro.

Behind the bat is "Whistle" Roberts—a smart and game catcher who has caught every game the Cardinals have played this year—more than 20 of them—all 16 years old and under. The coach and manager is "Wop" Lyle and he has them playing real baseball.

GOOD PITCHING.

"Moe" Kunsberg pitched and won 18 games for the Cardinals, seven of them in eight days. At Albany in the state tournament, he and Tommy Harper swept through the opposition. The Cardinals played smart baseball, using the sacrifice and squeeze play intelligently and successfully. Their baseball was smart enough to make them dominate the state teams. They are one of the favorites in the district meet, but will have a hard task. They will meet the pick of the southern states there and if they can win it will mean a shot at the junior world title.

Frank Hase, of the local legion post, will be in charge of the team that pulls out tonight to see if the big dream will come true.

Dekuh Kayoes Cook In New York Scrap

New York August 12.—(AP)—Arthur Dekuh, Italian heavyweight, knocked out George Cook, of Australia, in the eighth round of their 10-round bout at Starlight park tonight. Cook was counted out after 38 seconds of fighting in the round. He claimed a foul, but his protest was disallowed.

Sandlot Batboy Goes With Team

Joe Gershon, the Cardinals' batboy and mascot, is going to Meridian with the Georgia sandlot champions. They play Wednesday in Mississippi for the right to go on to the national junior world series, sponsored by the American Legion. The budget did not include a mascot. Joe, the 10-year-old mascot, will go because Atlanta's interested themselves in the case. Contributions were received from Mrs. W. T. Gentry, Frank Anderson, "Scrappy" Sullivan, Frank Wagoner, P. P. Gambrell, G. H. Ludolph, Tubby Walton and a friend and The Atlanta Constitution.

After a thrilling day of yanking fat bream from shady coves and wrestling wide-mouthed bass from the open water, one naturally felt like slipping a bit of folding money to the guide.

The guide had just tied up the boat and unshipped the outboard motor with sure hands that needed no flashlight. He was standing modestly out of the circle of light at the boathouse while the two men he had piloted since early morning bragged shamelessly about their skill as fishermen.

As I slipped him the tip he thanked me in a word that was sincere, but neither effusive nor servile. He accepted it as an efficient executive might accept a bonus. Such poise I never saw in an eleven-year-old boy.

"What do you do with your money, Guy?" I asked. "I'm saving it to go through Tech with," he replied simply. "I'm going to be a civil engineer."

"And I hope he turns out to be the best football player Tech ever had," supplied his father who was within earshot.

A LITTLE MAN.

This is Guy Hall, Jr., I am talking about who is fast becoming the most famous guide on Rabun lake. He took L. K. Starr and me in charge Saturday and Sunday and led us right into the door-yards of more bass and bream and trout than either of us ever caught in one day.

Guy is eleven years old. He has the face and build of a nine-year-old and talks like a man of 30. He lives on the lake and is tanned a nut brown. If he could sell his sun-tan it would bring enough money in the Mayfair market to put him through Georgia Tech.

Guy's associates are all adult it seems and I would like to see a report on his I.Q. I venture to say it would grade at least double his age. Guy goes to school at Demorest, Ga., and then he spends only the week-ends at Rabun lake where his father and brothers operate a boathouse and supply fishing and sight-seeing parties with guides.

Guy admitted he was sad that school was starting so soon. "I wish to goodness it did not start until October or maybe November," he declared. So, he is not hopelessly grown.

CAN GIVE AND TAKE.

Guy has a sense of humor that is almost sophisticated. Starr and I had been razzing him about the stubborn behavior of his motor, which Guy said he had picked out as the best after testing them all out at daybreak. We were riding Guy for not knowing a blessed thing about motors and it was sort of getting his goat.

Along in the afternoon I hooked a vigorous fish of some sort and manifested considerable excitement. Up came the fish and it was a baby bass about five inches long; all pepper and power, but too small to take out of the lake.

"Gosh, look at that one," exclaimed Guy with mock amazement. "Ain't he a whopper; gee, I sho would like to hook one like that. . . bet he weighs six and a half pounds. . . or maybe seven. . . you just have to know how to fish to get 'em like that." And the drinks were on me.

UNCANNY KNOWLEDGE.

And does the boy know that lake? We started in Saturday night at sundown in the half-light after the sun had ducked behind the mountains.

"We'll troll now," Guy ordered. And out went the artificial bait as we throttled down and moved along the curving shoreline. We chugged slowly along through the lowering shadows and presently I began to nod.

"You ought to get a strike right off this point," Guy said to me. "Wake up." I obeyed. And sure enough a wide-mouthed bass hit the minnow a wallop that nearly snatched the rod out of my hand. Guy was as tickled over that as if he had been reeling it in himself.

Now that may or may not be a picture of a boy. His upbringing is unusual and his present attainments remarkable. I intend to follow Guy Hall, Jr., until he gets to Georgia Tech and beyond.

It will be an interesting addendum to the vast sum of data on how to bring up a boy. Whether intentional or not his parents certainly have hit upon a combination that has at least produced an exceptional 11-year-old guide.

Walker To Claim Loughran's Title

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., August 12.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, will enter a claim for the light heavyweight championship if Loughran is surrendered by Tommy Loughran, it was announced today by Jack Kearns, manager of Walker.

Kearns made his statement at Harvey's Lake, near here, where Walker is training for a bout with Les Lomski, of Aberdeen, Wash., at Philadelphia next Monday night. Joe Smith, Loughran's manager, was at Walker's training camp, but refused to say when the champion would formally relinquish his light heavyweight title.

Kansas City, Mo., August 12.—(AP)—Charles Cook, manager of Joe Sekyra, of Dayton, Ohio, who will fight W. L. (Young) Stribling, of Macon, Ga., here next Monday night, announced today he would claim the world's light heavyweight championship for Sekyra after Tommy Loughran, present holder, made formal abdication of the crown.

Announcement of his intention to claim the title for Sekyra was made by Cook in a telegram sent here today to Gabe Kahan, promoter of the Stribling-Sekyra bout.

Former Mayor Enters Tournament

James L. Key, former mayor of Atlanta, just after he had hit his first ball Monday afternoon on the James L. Key municipal golf course in the qualifying rounds of a tournament being played on the course. The James L. Key, or Stockade course as it is sometimes called, was named in honor of one of Atlanta's most prominent citizens. He has patronized the course constantly since it was constructed several years ago. Mr. Key admitted Monday that he was not the best golfer in the city, but was eager to get into the first tournament to be played on the course this year. J. C. ## WILSON STABLE RUNS 2 WINNERS

Sunfire and African Romp Home First at Saratoga.

By Orlo L. Robertson.

New York, August 12.—(AP)—The owner-trainer combination of R. T. Wilson, Jr., and T. J. Henley put over a double win at Saratoga today when they sent out Sunfire to win the Waterbury handicap and African to account for the Cliff Haven—second feature of an ordinary Monday's program at the exclusive spa.

In winning the Waterbury, the four-year-old Sunfire defeated a small but classy field of handicap horses. Running second was Bud Fisher's three-year-old star, Dail, while trailing in third position was Marine—Man of War colt from J. E. Wilner's string. Sunfire was quoted at 9 to 2. African, victor once in 20 starts, chalked up the second win of his racing career against a field of three-year-olds over a mile route. He led such good runners as the Middleburg stable's Kleeta and K. E. Hitt's Sunfire to the wire by three lengths. Show money went to Night Life.

The day's program at the New York upstate track featured the winning of the Caskill claiming stake by Benjamin Block's Moridine—a four-year-old son of Morich. The nine-year-old's opponent the Rancocas star but Lightning Jones, which finished second, could never get closer than two lengths to the flying Khara. The son of Morich led Sun Forerunner to the wire by three lengths. Show money went to Night Life.

Khara—a prominent member of the Rancocas stable's long string of winners—ran at Hawthorne as a trial for the Chicago juvenile handicap, to be decided next Saturday. Six two-year-olds opposed the Rancocas star but Lightning Jones, which finished second, could never get closer than two lengths to the flying Khara. The son of Morich led Sun Forerunner to the wire by three lengths. Show money went to Night Life.

Philadelphia, August 12.—(AP)—Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., negro lightweight, was awarded the decision over Ray Miller, Chicago southpaw, at the end of a 10-round battle here tonight. Flowers weighed 134 1/2 and Miller 135 1/2.

Vols Serious Threat In Pennant Race

Twenty More Home Games Give Nashville Club Tremendous Advantage.

By Ralph McGill.

Pennantless since 1916, the Nashville Volunteers occupy today the most strategic position in the present Southern league race. They are in second place and are just started on a long home stay that has ten more games to run. They take the trail following 12 straight games at Sulphur Dell but have eight additional games scheduled in the dell before the season closes.

In their past 16 games the Volunteers have lost but two. They are getting some of the best pitching in the league and a set of ordinary infielders has played inspired ball balanced up what has always been a good hitting attack.

Those 20 games scheduled for Sulphur Dell may mean a pennant for the Vols, the erstwhile Lowly Vols. There's a reason.

TEN-MAN TEAM.
President John Heydler's motion to have a team of ten men was laughed down in the baseball meeting. Maybe the Vols didn't hear about it. They signed up old Robert Rightfield Fence and his twin brother, Jim Poole, an ex-Cracker. Judge Landis has done nothing at all about it. He goes right along letting the Vols use Robert Rightfield Fence. He plays in very close to the plate.

An examination of the record shows that 62 games have been played in the Dell. The Vols have won all but 20 of them. The Cracker dropped 10 out of 11 played there.

HOME AVERAGE.
The home average is .672. The road average is .423. Which shows just how valuable the tenth man on the Vol ball club really is.

The Nashville baseball reporters insist that the fence is as fair for one side as another. On the face of things that insistence seems justified but it isn't. Not really.

Vol pitchers work on their delivery take advantage of the fence. The visiting clubs never hit many home runs over the fence. The Vol pitchers keep the ball high outside for the left-handed hitters and make them hit to left field or center. They learn the hitters and pitch to keep them away from the fence. It is as much a part of their delivery as a curve ball or a fast one. They know they have some 75 games to pitch there.

NO DEFENSE.
Obviously the visiting pitchers haven't worked out a defense for the fence. They play only a few games in Nashville and pitch as they would in any other park.

Ordinary pitching won't work in the Dell. Old Robert Rightfield Fence must be taken into consideration on every pitch.

The tenth man on the Vol club isn't as fair for one club as another. It is an advantage for the home club which is used to the park.

OUTFIELD ADVANTAGE.
Vol outfielders, to take up another phase of it, play half of their games in the park. They learn how to play the ball off the fence. They know it as a billiard player knows his table. Rival outfielders fall down on the banks in the outfield, misjudge the bouncing ball as it bounces off the fence and get into trouble early and often.

The Vols have a good baseball team. It is no better than the three or four teams that are fighting the Braves for the lead. That is they would be no

VICTORY PUTS ATLANTA BACK IN FLAG RACE

Cracker Ace Wins Nineteenth Game of Season, 9 to 0.

By Ed Danforth.
Along in the cool of the seventh inning the New Orleans levee suddenly gave way and in rushed a surging flood of Cracker. The Pelicans were left struggling, grasping third place with numb fingers as Atlanta swirled away to a 9-to-0 victory in the opening game of the series at Spiller field.

Every man of God's Grenadiers charged across home plate in that violent uprising save Frank Haley. Eight scored over the prostrate form of "Lefty" Fuhr and the tottering frame of Dave Danforth, the man whose trick delivery once terrified is now merely a harmless gesture.

FOURTH STRAIGHT.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Cracker. It was the nineteenth for grim Climax Blethen. The triumph carried the Cracker back into first division again as the Chick fell before Nashville.

The ball club that Owner Jules Heinenman denominated "a Class B" club stood toe to toe with the Pels, slugged away and outstayed them. The Pelican infield cracked under the Cracker's pressure in the seventh and Fuhr was caught in the crumbling walls.

Fuhr for six innings was superb. He battled his way through the muck and mud of repeated basing hits and turned back the Cracker time and again as they threatened to score. He fanned the best Cracker hitters with men on base. His was a batting performance for six frames that overshadowed the great flinging Climax Blethen was doing for the Cracker.

BASES LOADED.

The Cracker loaded the bases in the first and could not score. In the third, the fifth and the sixth the Cracker planted men on the sacks but there they died as Fuhr chopped off the heads of would-be heroes.

The levee gave way without warning in the seventh. Neither side had scored and it appeared as if the score in the face of such pinch-pitching as Lefty and Climax were doing.

The seventh opened and Ernie Padgett booted a hard chance on Jack Sheehan's roller. Bob Parham poked a deliberately placed hit into left field. Parham's roller was a sure men's notch. Larry Gilbert ordered a pass for Cullop; he filled the bases in order to bring Dick Burris, a left-handed batter, face to face with Fuhr. It was a sure baseball any day except Monday.

BURRIS SCORES TWO.
Burris smacked one through the middle of the diamond and Sheehan and Parham gaped home. Fuhr was finished. He had been fighting with his control all afternoon and had gone six frames on craft and courage. Johnny Jones immediately poked one along into centerfield and Cullop scored.

Gilbert called Dave Danforth from the bull-pen. Three runs were not many and he might have saved things. However, Yelle singled over Dave's head and Burris scored from second; the fact that the Cracker had two runs in the all the time made every bit count.

Blethen bounced one down to Bonura and the lad booted it, filling the sacks again. Hal Lee applied the wax; it was a two-bagger that cleaned the sacks. That gave the Cracker seven runs. Sheehan came up for the second time and fled out to Powers. Parham, however, singled Lee across with his second base knock of the frame and closed it all out by being caught in a chase off first base.

CRACKERS REVIVED.
That vicious seventh inning attack was a remarkable example of constant pressure and smart base running. It also was an indication that the Cracker had revived their fighting spirit they displayed in crashing the gate of first division eight weeks back. The Cracker added one run in their eighth on the only matches played in the sudden, devastating uprising the inning before.

The Pelicans still looked like the club to beat in the race. Barring their two infield bobbles—the field was wet from a rain just before game time and offered insecure footing—Gilbert entry was a high stepping, huc-

Moriarty Says Fate Holds Upper Hand In Majors

NEW PATTERN WROUGHT WITH CUBS LEADING

August Is Month of Hardest Strain—Injuries Hurt Cards.

By George Moriarty,
(Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance)
New York, August 12.—August is the month of strain and hardship for major league ball players. Due to the constant tension of trying to outguess the other fellow every day, the individual player probably pictures a secluded spot where the fishing is good, or wishes for the farm and its peaceful environments.

At this stage the player is worrying about where his club will finish and whether his playing is good enough to warrant his retention next year. As the major league races head into mid-August it is obvious that fate holds the upper hand. She deals kindly with some and rips others asunder. Look at the unexpected pattern she has fashioned. Two months ago the St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates were very much in the pennant scramble; today it would be folly to predict that the Chicago Cubs have anything but a clear field ahead.

FATE KIND.
Although the Cubs have excellent reserve strength, a real batting punch and dependable pitching, fate has been kind in keeping their injuries to a minimum. While Gabby Hartnett's absence has been a severe blow, Gonzales and Taylor have held the backstop job together. Failure of Alexander, Sherdell and Haines to win consistently has worked havoc with the St. Louis Cardinals. Reversal of form in the box put a fatal crimp in the New York Giants. Injuries to Burleigh Grimes and Pie Traynor robbed Pittsburgh of its punch and spirit. To date the Cubs have had the fewest major league injuries to a few of their vital stars; they should be at the head of the parade in October.

SAME STORY.
In the American League the story is much the same. If the Yankees had full pitching strength they would now be giving the Mackmen the battle of their lives, as they still have everything needed in the pennant-winning business with that exception. In one of his first attempts to re-align his box pattern, Manager Huggins, of the Yankees, trotted out Frank Nikola, former Holy Cross southpaw, a few days ago. A reliable left-hander or two is imperative in the pitching scheme of a championship team. In his first try Nikola's pitching form was impressive. If he has the natural stuff you may hear much about this lefty in the future, as the master southpaw, Herb Pennock, is his tutor.

THE MACKS.
Philadelphia far outclasses all American league competitors in the serious business of box work. Grove and Walberg continue to be inspiring southpaws. When either one takes the mound he seems to say to his teammates: "You fellows do the hitting. I'll do the pitching!" The rest of the staff have little difficulty in winning, with the powerful attack of Fox, Simmons, Cochrane, et al. behind them. However, fate has perhaps been kindest to Connie Mack this year in the development of George Egnashaw, a gigantic right-hand pitcher. Without Egnashaw going at top speed it would hardly have been possible for the Mackmen to be so far in front. Egnashaw's success didn't come in haphazard fashion. Rather he has all the inclinations of a thorough student. No other pitcher watches the opposing batters with more hawk-like zeal and concern. Briefly, Egnashaw, by diligent application, has scaled the barriers to stardom in one short year. He is one of the new fire-ball kings. Similarly, Guy Bush has served as chief life-saver for the Chicago Cubs. At least two pitchers must count through without a hitch for a pennant contender, and Bush and Malone have been equal to the task for the Cubs.

Carey Is Blamed For Max's Plight

Winnipeg, Man., August 12.—(P)—Joe Jacobs, American manager for Max Schmeling, German heavyweight boxer, in an interview here blamed William F. Carey, manager of Madison Square Garden in New York, for Schmeling's status, rather lack of status in New York boxing circles. After charging that Carey had "double-crossed" Schmeling, Jacobs declared he and Schmeling were not worrying but were anxious for a match with Jack Dempsey, which in Jacobs' opinion "will draw the biggest gate in the history of boxing."

He said Carey had denied to him over the phone in Seattle last week that he had announced he was going to "cease negotiations" for a Schmeling-Sharkey bout and planned to surrender his interests to Detroit (Mich.) promoters.

Jacobs said he had informed Carey that if Carey did not run the Detroit bout himself, Schmeling would not go through with the match.

"That is the main reason the bout fell through," Jacobs said. "We did not double-cross Carey, he double-crossed us."

Amateur Field Called Greatest In History

Pebble Beach To Draw Every Leading Golfer of World September 2.

Del Monte, August 12.—The greatest gathering of golf stars ever entered in an amateur tournament will be assembled at Pebble Beach, Cal., when the initial round of competition gets under way.

Internationally known golfers who have the highest honors on courses in America and Europe have entered this year's national amateur. Outstanding on the list are more than 150 entrants are the names of Bobby Jones of Atlanta, Ga.; Cyril Tolley, England; Chick Evans, Chicago; Jess Sweetser, New York; Don Carrick, Canada; Edward F. Storey, England, and George Voight, Washington, D. C. The British stars must travel 12,000 miles and some of the Americans over 5,000 just to play at Pebble Beach in September.

Jones has for years dominated the golf world. At present he is American open and amateur champion. For four of the last five years he has held the national amateur championship. But for his defeat at the hands of George You Elna in 1926, he would have won the national amateur crown for five successive years.

The British amateur championship is held by Cyril Tolley. He and his four compatriots, Eustace Storey, T. A. Bourne, Lord Charles Hope, and Major Guy Colin Campbell, are making an unofficial raid for the American amateur crown. Their trip is not sponsored by any British golfing organization. They are now en route to America and Del Monte to try to do as Americans have done with their championships—carry the title home.

Somerville is Canadian amateur champion and an exceptional golfer. He has also been among the leaders when he failed to annex titular honors in tournaments in Canada and the United States.

Sweetser has been one of America's leading amateurs for the past decade. He reached his zenith in 1922 when he won the national amateur title. In 1925 he lost to Max Marston in the finals on the 38th hole. He has been a member of the Walker cup team several years.

Von Elm is the man who broke Jones' string of victories in the national amateur in 1926. He has won numerous state and sectional titles, including the California Amateur championship. Von Elm is one of the several Americans counted on to overcome the British invaders and possibly upset Bobby Jones.

Evans was national open and amateur champion in 1916. In 1920 he repeated in the amateur. He was eliminated by Jesse Guilford in the finals in 1921. Evans has not won a major championship in recent years. However, he has always been a serious threat and promises to be such in this year's amateur at Pebble Beach.

Ten Homers Hit In One Ball Game

What is claimed to be a home run record for a single game in the Georgia-Alabama league was established Monday at Cedartown when ten home runs were knocked in the Anniston game.

Anniston started the home run hitting in the first inning and it was ended in the eighth frame. Cedartown hit for the circuit six times and Anniston batters clouted four. Cedartown used two pitchers and Anniston used three.

Lakewood Track Aided by Rains

Rain Sunday and Monday night put the Lakewood oval in excellent condition for the first annual kids' bicycle races to be held Saturday.

Already there have been some 25 entries in the boys' events and most of these youngsters have been out practicing for his past two weeks. Among them is William Walworth, young nephew of Bobby Walworth, world's famous bicycle rider of Atlanta, and it is this youngster's ambition to become as great as his uncle. Entries are still being received by Mr. Oscar Mills, general manager of the park, and all that is necessary is to send in the name, age and address to him at Lakewood. Entry list will close Thursday night, and events and participants will be published Friday morning. There is no charge to enter and there will be no admission to the grandstand. Time trials in the half and mile and mile races for the boys will be in order with some mighty fine prizes going to the winners.

'NO DRAW' BOUT AT AUDITORIUM

Goodrich and Hull Will Go Extra Rounds in Return Match.

Clyde Hull, Texas battler, will meet Ted Goodrich, Atlanta's own welterweight, in a scheduled 12-round return engagement at the auditorium a week from tonight, going into the ring to win or lose—with no possibility of a draw.

Matchmaker Eddie Hanlon, who sent the boys out two weeks ago when the verdict was "all even," got both Goodrich and Hull to agree to fight three extra rounds in case the decision at the end of their scheduled 12 frames again favored neither one.

The idea is a new one in the professional ring, but should find favor with Atlanta fans, many of whom were dissatisfied with the announced verdict of the previous fight. Many of the crowd which watched the last bout were of the opinion that the decision should have been given to Goodrich, many more thought that Hull had an edge, while some few agreed that a draw was the only fair verdict. At the request of a number of these fans the pair were rematched, and Hanlon scheduled the extra three rounds to eliminate discussion this time.

Goodrich will again be out for his 22nd victory, the same total he wanted two weeks ago. Hull, with an equally good record, will also be giving his all to avoid a stomp on his part.

In the semi-windup affair Young Jack Dempsey will face Roy Bailey, another Atlantan. This fight should be almost as good a drawing card as the main go, since both lads have good records and are well matched.

The balance of the card has not yet been arranged, but Hanlon is looking around with great care to get the pick of the boys in and around Atlanta for his preliminary bouts on Friday the 13th.

VOLEES KEEP WINNING.

Nashville, Tenn., August 12.—Nashville continued its winning streak by taking a lopsided game from the Chicago Cubs today, 11 to 1. Pule hit his twenty-eighth home run and Leslie and Brasili also drove the ball over the fence. A bunting attack on Kilt May in the eighth helped the Voles to score five runs.

Pule came within two home runs of tying Nick Culpey's 1925 record when he drove Klugman in ahead today during the seventh frame.

TWENTIETH INSTALLMENT.

The fact of the matter is," said Mortimer, "Father and I are fed up on Bundy. We've been neighbors with them too long."

"Ah," said Richard. "Are you thinking of moving?"

"No, we are thinking of moving them."

Richard regarded his brother gravely and shook his head chidingly. "You always did talk too much," he said.

"Meaning what?"

"The words are to be taken in their most ordinary and simple meaning."

"Listen," said Mortimer, "why don't you go back to Paris?"

"You don't welcome my presence here?"

"Not warmly. What for did you come back, anyhow? Doesn't mother miss you?"

"She does," said Richard. "Is father worried about my repatriation by any chance?"

"I think," said Mortimer, "he would be willing to make it worth your while to go back."

"Did he say so?"

"We discussed it."

"Well, now! Father seldom pays for something without getting rather more than the worth of his money. Have you an idea why my absence would be worth dollars and cents to him?"

"I think your sanctified attitude bores him."

"And, of course, he hates being bored."

"Exactly."

"I'll consider it. Did he mention a sum?"

"Before long I imagine he'll be in a position to speak of important money."

"When I deal with Blades it must be cash in advance."

"That can be arranged—in, say, two or three months. In the meantime I'm sure he'll be reasonable—and you can come back again if he doesn't make good."

"Oh, the idea is that I'm to go immediately?"

"You can't go too soon to make him happy."

"We'll have to discuss it," Richard said gravely, and then: "Mortimer, did I mention that, if you have a defect, it is talking too much?"

"You did."

"I am even more confirmed in my opinion," said Richard. "But to get back to our mutuality. Within an hour you leave for home, and you lie low. Restrain these impulses to talk which seem to seize upon you. And forget that you ever heard of Martha Bundy."

"What is your concern with her—aside from the Sir Galahad angle?"

Mortimer's voice was sneering.

"Why," said Richard, still gravely, "I intend to marry her."

"Old Timoleon and all the twins will be tickled to hear that."

"Possibly. That's beside the point. You got Martha into this mess. I'm going to keep her clear of it."

"I'm not so sure."

"And why?"

"Because," said Mortimer, "if worse comes to worse, I don't know that a little notoriety could ruin me. And, as your figure of speech puts it neatly, it would smash her dolls. Anyhow, it's merchandise to trade with."

Richard nodded his head a couple of times as if in confirmation of some private belief. "Yes," he said, "you certainly are a low form of animal life. . . . By the way, why does the boy Jimmy, in that peakeasy, hate you so fervently?"

"Does he?"

"You should notice people's eyes."

"Jimmy is someone else I haven't time to worry about."

"You might take time. I suppose it's his sister—that little Katie."

"Going to Sir Galahad her too?"

"They're a family you have to dissociate from their occupation," said Richard. "Rather admirable, on the whole. Cohesion and loyalty, and a sort of innate decency. Molly and Tom go on about the job of being parents just as if they were running a green grocery. They interest me. So does Miss Patsy. . . . What does she give them in return for their loyalty to her?"

"Not interested," said Mortimer.

"Well, I'll be getting along—so you may pack and be on your way. You've heard the rules. I'm the umpire. If you break one, I'll have to impose the penalty."

"You," said Mortimer, "will oblige by going to the devil."

"Good night," said Richard, still gravely, without display of rancor or other emotion.

"Good-by," said Mortimer pointedly.

Richard found a chair in a corner of the deserted lobby and waited for his brother to descend. While he did so he reviewed their conversation and selected from it those points that seemed to him to be salient.

First, it was the Blads family tradition of getting even for an injury that animated Mortimer.

Second, Mortimer and his father had found some method of working an injury to the Bundys.

Third, his father was seriously worried about his presence in America, and would make a financial return for his absence.

"Yes," he said to himself, "Mortimer does talk too much."

Unobserved, he watched Mortimer's departure; then himself followed, after some 15 minutes had been allowed to elapse, in a taxicab. He felt the expense justified. It was daylight when he was driven up to the old hotel, where he went at once to his room for a few hours' sleep.

At 9:30 he breakfasted and went about his business—which was the observation of passing events in the neighborhood. Of pertinent facts he collected a number during the morning. He became aware that the Bundys had entered the real estate field in a large way. He was informed of the dynamiting of their ditching machine and of sundry other minor misfortunes. He saw his father in conversation with the elder twins and watched them as they walked across the fields toward the courthouse. All of which gave him food for speculation and fired his curiosity.

After luncheon he proceeded to the courthouse and, by chatting with various attaches and hangers-on, was able to discover that Damon and Pythias had shown an interest in land records. After that it required a minimum of diplomacy to run down the object of their search.

Thereupon the matter became clear to him—when he added that transfer of mortgage to Mortimer's talk about removing the Bundys as neighbors.

"It became clear to him what his father and brother were about—but it did not yet become clear to him what he would, could, or should do about what they were doing."

For days Martha lived from one newspaper to the next. The police promised disclosure; persons unnamed were being questioned; and an arrest was guaranteed, but no arrest was made. There seemed nothing for the detective force to set its teeth in, and a week after the tragedy they appeared to possess no fact beyond the salient one that Colburn was dead and that some person unknown had killed him.

Martha lived more kaleidoscopically than before. She could not endure silence or inactivity, but demanded of every minute that it should give her 60 seconds of eventfulness.

"But listen, dear," Jerry expostulated, "you've got to light once in a while. And there's the business. We're neglecting it."

"Drat the business," Martha said sharply.

Jerry shrugged her shoulders. "Just as you say," she said, "and then what?"

"I don't know."

"Hotels get a prejudice against girls who don't pay their bills."

"Let them throw us out," said Martha. "It would give us something to think about, anyhow."

"It would," said Jerry, and then she walked across to Martha. "You mustn't let this thing ride you," she said. "The beans are spilled, but far none of them have sopped on your skirt. You're running yourself ragged."

Martha laughed unbecomingly. "Let's move," she said breathlessly. "Isn't it time?"

"It's always time to move," Jerry said. "Come along to my room. Let's get early and get out there before the jam."

The two girls walked to the building where they were to meet Jerry Prouty and Elverson Ferris, who were to take them to the Yankee stadium.

They dined early and took a taxicab which carried them northward at breakneck speed, the very reckless abandon of the driving welcome to Martha.

Then came the jam of traffic, the honking of thousands of horns, the grinding of brakes, the seemingly endless procession of juddering humanity driven by some abysmal, troglodytic urge to the place of combat. . . . Traffic officers, mounted police, a bridge jammed to suffocation with the tide of the Harlem swirling restlessly underneath! Then the bulk of the stadium, the surging mob about the entrance, the jostle and elbowing and trampling as the solid mass of spectators surged and panted and perspired up the ramps to their seats high above the field normally devoted to a more peaceful pursuit.

Below spread a monstrous area of wooden benches reaching to the walls, and Martha took an impression as of a sea of pinkish faces moving in wavelike rhythm. . . . And in the center, inclosed by a packed mass of men to do duty, it would be to describe to the world the events of the evening, stood out in almost blinding light the square platform upon which the young men were presently to pummel each other.

Then her eyes paused upon the back of the head of a gentleman in the adjoining box; some vague familiarity arrested her, and she continued to gaze curiously until he turned, to disclose the face of Roswell Blade. He was alone and appeared to be awaiting someone, who arrived presently in the person of a largeish man, furtive-eyed, with that chocolate skin which is one of the distinguishing marks of gentlemen of the underworld. He sat beside Mr. Blade without shaking hands.

"You were recommended highly," said Mr. Blade affably.

"I deliver," said the man.

"The idea," said Mr. Blade, "is that I wish to give the man in question a distaste for America. I want."

Rialto Theater

"Piccadilly," Picture of London Night Club Revelries, Is No Triumph.

"Piccadilly" furnished scene of London revelries—turned out to be nothing but an imitation New York night club and the beautiful, personable American Shimmie Queen, Gilda Gray, descends to the ordinary level of a vaudeville dancer in the current attraction at the Rialto theater.

Advance publicity on "Piccadilly" almost convinced us that Gilda might have defeated the old boy by the scythe and staged what is known in boxing, sporting and theatrical circles as a "comeback." Even though we suppress a perfectly good pun, it must be admitted that the picture is anything but a triumph.

Most of "Piccadilly" revolves around the respective abilities and disabilities of Miss Gray and a Chinese girl, Anna May Wong—neither of whom would have justified all the attention showered upon them by the English gentleman in the picture, Jameson Thomas. After administering an added stimulant in the form of a trial scene, the picture fades into oblivion with all the dramatics of a dying confession by the Oriental villain.

Metropolitan

"The Valiant," Plotless and Gruesome, Fails to Command Interest.

Starting where most stories leave off, and not lacking in that, "The Valiant" is a cinema that is hardly intended to amuse the average motion picture audience. The picture opened Monday at the Metropolitan theater.

With an attempt at a happy ending, an unnecessary love scene or two, a dab of local color and a scant drop of humor mixed with much rather scattered action, an otherwise nakedly gruesome central theme, an effort is made to reduce the film of the sterotype.

Whether these garnishments constitute even a feeble effort in the right direction is not necessary to decide here. Suffice it to say the effort is more likely to prove unsuccessful with theater patrons.

"The Valiant" can hardly be said to have a plot at all, and few pictures in this day and time can hope for public approval sans plot, and one filled with action at that. Aside from the aforementioned garnishments, the story, if it can be termed such, is merely a single, somewhat protracted incident—a son who has committed murder shields his identity in going to the gallows because he doesn't want to bring shame upon an aged mother.

That is all there is. If that can be considered entertaining, then let it be justly recorded that Paul Muni, the murderer and single character of the cast, makes a valiant attempt to make it so.

"The Valiant" is billed for the feature on the week's bill, but audiences will find the more enterprising of the program far more entertaining than this.

Loew's Capitol

"Broadway," Night Club Melodrama, Is Lavish and Diverting.

"Broadway," the melodramatic romance of a night club hooper, makes its southern premiere at the Capitol theater this week. It is another of the pictures with an underworld theme and has pleased two packed houses this week, a midnight show Sunday being the first showing.

Carl Laemmle produced it on such a lavish scale that he offers an incongruity. The stage production showed a young professor trying to escape from a small night club into vaudeville. Laemmle, seeking lavishness, obtained it but his hooper seeking escape from a club that is finer than any vaudeville job. This, and the fact that Glenn Tryon, the lead, does not do his singing and dancing, are the only weak spots in the show.

The photography, especially a closing shot, is excellently done. The modernistic fashion, which first appeared in this country in the German film "Variety," Emil Jennings' first great picture.

The plot has to do with the hooper and his girl friend, the latter carried off by a gangster. There are a couple of neat murders, done in melodramatic style.

Evelyn Brent steals the lead from Merna Kennedy and Tom Jackson, who was in the original story. The picture plays a detective in such a fashion as to make him the person in the picture best remembered.

Carter Barron, one of Atlanta's best-known young theatrical men, assumed his duties as manager of the Capitol Sunday night. His first offering is a picture of a detective, which is one that may be recommended as entertaining, with no slow spots. The Capitol is worth seeing, especially if one likes pictures of this type.

Keith's Georgia

"Bulldog Drummond" Proves to Be Greatest of the Talkies.

Show us a few more pictures like "Bulldog Drummond," current occupant of the cracking canvas at Keith's, and we will take most of the things we have said about the picture.

In fact we already have taken back many of them on the strength of the merry doings of the Bulldog and his cohorts.

"Bulldog Drummond" is a rollicking, fast-moving, witty, utterly impossible but wholly entertaining bit of good fun. It proposes to be a "thriller" mystery thriller, if you please—but it escapes 90 per cent of the things of "thrillers" when it carefully refrains from taking itself seriously.

The "sinister, mysterious and thrilling" foreground is never introduced without a laugh lurking just around the corner. Nor do we mean by this that the picture is a comedy, but that it is a comedy of the "thriller" type.

SIGHT EARTHQUAKE ROCKS SIX STATES

Albany, N. Y., August 12.—(AP)—Throughout parts of five eastern states and one Canadian province belated earlier risers rolled from tilted beds while the earth's crust vibrated in a series of quakes of varying intensity and duration today.

When a last tremor died away it was found that the shocks were felt from Connecticut to Ohio and from Pennsylvania to the province of Ontario, the resultant damage to the residents of scores of cities resumed their daily tasks and left to the scientists the work of determining the extent, intensity and location of the quakes.

Observers in various laboratories said the tremors had moved in a north and south direction, from the central and western part of New York state and that the center of the disturbance probably was located somewhere near the Pennsylvania border.

Southern Shoe Retailers To Close Convention Today

Following Monday night's dinner dance at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, the Southern Shoe Retailers' Association will close its tenth annual convention this afternoon with the election of new officers.

The convention, held in Atlanta for the third time in ten years, opened Sunday afternoon with a directors' meeting and a successful convention has ensued, according to George P. Golden, of Jacksonville, president of the association. Several hundred guests have registered for the convention.

More than 200 were in attendance at the banquet presided over by J. O. Steele, of Atlanta, master of ceremonies. The menu was humorously written in terms well known to shoe dealers, such as suede dressing, pair salad, snuffed calf, and convention applesauce.

Professional and amateur entertainment was provided for the guests by Harry Edgerton of Atlanta, master of ceremonies for the evening. Several professional singers and dancers were followed by well known retailers, who entertained the audience with impromptu selections. Led by Hubert Steele, of Birmingham, Al Reis, Sidney Meth, Tob Gallagher and others performed in various ways for the listeners.

In addition to President Golden, the other officers are Herman Rice, of Birmingham; Harry Edgerton, of Atlanta; Morris L. Cowan, of Miami, Fla.; and J. O. Steele, of Atlanta.

Official opening of the convention took place Monday morning with the address by James H. Stone, of Chicago, president of the National Shoe Retailers' Association, who will speak on "The Value of Associations."

Others who will make addresses are C. D. Atkinson, of Atlanta, "The Value of Advertising," and M. A. Condon, of Charleston, "Store Records."

UNABLE TO OBTAIN JOB, YOUNG WOMAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Because she was dependent over not being able to obtain employment, Miss Ruth Chamberlain, 24, who has been staying at a hotel for a week, attempted to kill herself by shooting a pistol bullet into her left breast Monday night, she admitted to Call Officers L. P. Higgins and M. B. Cartwright. Although she fired five times, only one bullet was effective, and that to a slight degree. Doctors at Grady hospital say that her condition is not serious.

The woman, who says she came here from Jacksonville, made her suicide attempt on the sidewalk at Greenwood avenue, near Frederica street. After shooting five times and falling to the sidewalk, the woman was found by H. Baley and L. A. Bell, both of whom live nearby. The two men rushed her to a private hospital and she was later transferred to Grady.

If people went to Europe by rail, half the fun and much of the lure and benefits of a European tour would be lost. Isn't that so? Then, why not add the delights of a sea voyage to your vacation in the North?

Any Monday, Wednesday, Friday or Sunday afternoon you may board a luxurious Savannah Liner at Savannah. By nightfall you are far out at sea. Across a thousand miles of open ocean comes a cooling breeze.

You have just finished one of those delicious dinners for which Savannah Line chefs are famous. You step out on deck to enjoy a glorious moon rising out of the sea. The orchestra is swinging into a fox trot. And what an orchestra it is! The pick of musicians from the musical clubs of leading Southern colleges.

You dance and bridge with those charming people one always meets on shipboard. And so to bed! In a stateroom as comfortable as your bedroom at home. And now for a real surprise! Including meals on the ship and a stateroom with hot and cold running water, it costs considerably less than the hot, dusty and tiresome overland way! Even with a cabin-de-luxe with twin beds and private bath you still save money. Ask your railroad ticket agent about low-cost circle tours to all points North and East via Savannah Line.
